A Historic Spot.

Linlithgow palace, on the shore of the beautiful sheet of water of that name in Scotland, is somewhat square and heavy looking and is full of historic interest. Linlithgow was the birthplace of Mary, queen of Scots; in Linlithgow church James IV. of Scotland was forewarned by an apparition of the coming disaster at Flodden Field; in its streets the regent Murray was shot; close by the town Edward I. had two ribs broken by his horse the night before Falkirk, and on its loch a chancellor of the exchequer bent on economy, issued instructions that the royal swans should be kept down to a dozen.—Argonaut.

MUNICIPAL NOMINATIONS

A LARGE FIELD NOMINATED.

Those whose names will appear on the ballot paper are:

FOR MAYOR—

J. N. Osborne.
J. E. Robinson.

FOR REEVE—

P. M. Graham.
Herman Meng.

FOR COUNCILLORS—

F. S. Boyes.
W. T. Gbbard.
A. McGregor.
John Lowry.
C. H. Spencer.
W. A. Steacy.
Manson Stevens.

Among the new men whose names will appear on the ballot paper Messrs. Frank Boyes and Alexander McGregor should make excellent Councilors and give valuable service to the town. Mr. Manson Stevens also is a new man and would do credit to the town.

The electors of Nananee, or at least a few of them assembled in the town hall on Monday evening to nominate candidates for the 1918 Council.

The number of electors present showed that very little interest is being taken in Municipal affairs this year and that most ratepayers are probably fairly well satisfied with the doings of last year's Council. The town's affairs are in better shape than a year ago, though the financiers are none to plentiful yet and an overdraft continues to be a feature of the statement. During the year the street watering muddle, which has been carried from council to council for three or four years, was cleared up and the disposal works, which has been a nuisance and in a very unsatisfactory condition, has been cleaned and we are assured that it is now working satisfactory, and if future councils will see that the works is cleaned out regularly every year it should be kept in good order indefinitely, though there is one pipe leading to the sludge well not yet in good order. These two items cost quite a sum of money and contributed not a little to the size of the overdraft. Various Patriotic grants and damage suits also helped to swell the expenditure on contingent account to an unusually large amount.

Following the nominations, Mr. W. J. Shannon was chosen chairman of the meeting and choice proved a wise one. Mr. Shannon limited the time each candidate for municipal honors could speak and thus brought the meeting to a close in good time.

The various speakers referred very briefly to their doings of the past year in the Council and the new nominees did not bring forward any startling propositions for the future. The hall was very cold and even the eloquence of the aspiring members of the Council failed to heat the atmosphere to a degree at all comfortable, but then, coal is scarce and it would

Will Refuse to Fight.

PETROGRAD, Dec. 31.—A meeting of German and Austrian prisoners of war was held in Petrograd Saturday for the purpose of organizing international propaganda among prisoners in Russia. A Hungarian officer, named Rudnianski was elected president. Speeches were made by Czechs, Poles, Slovaks, and Austrian Serbs.

The Hungarian officer, Rudnianski, who was elected president, said: "Thanks to the Russian revolution, can speak my innermost thought freely. Our first thought now is general peace and freedom for all nations. Let Russian freedom teach to obtain a like freedom at home."

The first speaker, a Czech, made violent attack upon Count Czerni the Austro-Hungarian Prime Minister.

"If a separate peace is concluded he said, 'we shall be sent to fight against the Italians, French, and other allies. That will not do. The was a gendarme of Europe; the Russian Czar, but he was overpowered. There remains another gendarme the dynasty of the Hapsburgs at the Hohenzollerns, which, too, must be overthrown."

Instead of constituting an American army, mixed regiments comprising for example, one battalion with French battalions would be constituted."

HUNS MAKE ATTACKS

Big Battles in Cambria and Ypres Areas.

Strong Forces Launched Against British—Germans Gained Foot-hold in Places, but Were Ejected Later by Determined Counter Attacks, and the Foe Suffered Very Heavy Losses.

LONDON, Dec. 31.—There was heavy fighting Sunday south of Cambrai. The Germans made a strong attack on a front of about two miles, according to Field Marshal Haig's report from headquarters Sunday night.

They succeeded in gaining a foot-hold at two points, but later were ejected in part by British counter-attacks.

The Germans also Saturday night essayed an attack against the British north-east of Ypres, where for several days past they had been laying down a heavy preparatory artillery fire. The attack, however, was futile, for the British raked the Germans with their fire and repulsed them with considerable losses.

A despatch to Reuters' Limited from British headquarters says the Germans are experiencing difficulty in maintaining efficiency in their air service on the western front. The correspondent says prisoners are unanimous in saying that the output of new machines is very limited, and that this fact is compelling the employment of old types of aircraft.

Sunday night's report from British headquarters in France reads:

"At dawn to-day the enemy made powerful local attacks on a total front of over two miles against our positions on the spur known as Welsh Ridge, south of Cambrai. In the centre the enemy was repulsed, but on the right, to the north of La Zuercherie, and on the left, to the south of Marcoing, his troops succeeded in effecting a lodgment in two small salients in our lines.

"Our counter-attacks have ejected the enemy from a portion of these positions, and we have taken a number of prisoners. The fighting is continuing in both localities.

"Early this morning hostile raiding parties which attacked our positions in the neighborhood of Conneieu were repulsed with loss.

Sunday afternoon's report reads: "Following the activity of his artillery north-east of Ypres, reported a last night's communique, the enemy yesterday evening carried out a local attack against our positions in the neighborhood of the Ypres-Straden railway. The attack was completely repulsed by our fire.

Saturday night's report said:

"During the day the hostile artillery has again shown considerable activity at a number of points along our front, especially in the neighborhood of Hargicourt, south and west of Lens and east and north-east of Ypres.

"Aviation: Our aeroplanes dropped over one hundred bombs on three enemy aerodromes north of Lille. Seven hostile machines, four of which fell inside our lines, were brought down by our aeroplanes; two others were driven down out of control, while four others were shot down by our guns, three falling within our lines. Three of our machines are missing."

AWAIT SUPREME TRIAL

British People Expect a Bitter Struggle in 1918.

Inventory of the Gains of the Past Year Disappointing to the Allies, Although the Balance is on the Right Side—Air Raids Will Be Made on Large Scale.

LONDON, Dec. 31.—Great Britain is posting up the ledger of 1917 with a somewhat wry face. There is a balance on the right side, but the year's gains are far below expectations. The Russian liquidation accounts, of course, for much of the loss, while the new capital so happily added to the common fund of democracy has as yet hardly begun to appear in the day-to-day accounts of working profits. Before the books of this world war can be closed it is believed here there will be great strain and stress of which the brunt will fall on this country.

"The supreme trial of the severest crisis," according to Lord Curzon, "lies before, not behind us, and in the next six months we may be confronted with perils greater than any we have overcome."

These views, of course, do not omit a consideration of assistance other than military which the United States will render, and is rendering now, but if as the leaders among the European allies proclaim only a military victory can secure the necessary decision the war will not be won until American man-power can be employed to win it.

"The war is entering on the fourth New Year," writes J. L. Garvin in The Observer, "and is very likely to see the fifth unless the whole gigantic price we have paid in blood and treasure is to end in a fool's bargain for ourselves and a market of dupes for the world."

Parententically there is one particular field in which Mr. Garvin and many others hold that American effort ought to tell with more decisive effect than in any other connection whatever during the new year; this is the matter of airplane construction. The enemy is more formidable in the air than he ever has been. The policy of aerial warfare inaugurated on the British side by the raid on Mannheim is expected to make the Germans strain every effort to maintain and extend their system of aerial attack on civilian populations. Predictions in this connection would be idle, but it may be mentioned as a matter of fact that many people of expert judgment here believe that not only will London and other English cities be subjected to a large-scale air raid during 1918, but that New York will not escape a similar experience in a minor key.

PROGRESS IN PALESTINE.

GUATEMALA CITY WRECKED.

Many People Killed by Disaster and Thousands Homeless.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—Guatemala City, capital of the little Central American Republic of Guatemala, has been laid in ruins by a series of earthquakes beginning Christmas Day, and culminating Saturday night in violent shocks, which completed the work of destruction. A cablegram to the Navy Department Sunday said 125,000 people were in the streets without shelter, and that a number were killed by falling walls.

Naval vessels in Central American waters have been ordered to the stricken city to render all possible assistance.

Following is the brief despatch which brought the news of the catastrophe:

"Bad earthquake yesterday, finished the work of others. Everything in ruins and beyond description as a result of last night's shock. One hundred and twenty-five thousand people are in the streets. Parts of the country are very cold and windy. Tents are needed badly. Quite a number killed yesterday by falling walls."

The shocks probably occurred between 5.57 and 7 o'clock Saturday night. Violent earthquakes were recorded at that time by the seismographs of the Georgetown University Observatory, and the distance was estimated at 1,900 miles from Washington.

Guatemala has been the scene of many disasters, the results of earthquakes. Since the settlement of the country, in 1522, there have been more than 50 volcanic eruptions, and in excess of 300 earthquakes. The original Guatemala City was destroyed in 1641, and 8,000 of the inhabitants were killed by a deluge of water from a nearby volcano, which was rent by an earthquake. The second capital was destroyed by an earthquake in 1773. The houses of the present capital were built low in consequence of the liability to earthquakes.

Guatemala City is situated on a plain at an elevation of 4,850 feet above sea level. In the great square stood the old vice-regal palace, the cathedral and Archbishop's palace, and Government offices. The capital is the centre of the trade of the entire republic, which consists in the manufacture of muslins, cotton yarns of fine texture, articles of silver and embroideries.

ITALIAN CITIES BOMBED.

Raiders Made Attacks on Four Open Towns.

ROME, Dec. 31.—A large enemy fleet of airplanes participated in the air raid over the city of Padua and nearby towns on Friday night, when thirteen persons were killed and sixty wounded, the majority of the latter being women. In Padua the bombs fell in public squares, near hotels, clubs, and churches, and from the manner in which the raid was carried on unusual barbarism and personal bitterness were shown. The raid was repeated Saturday night, when three persons were killed and three wounded.

A bright moonlight favored the raiders, who operated over a wide area embracing the cities of Treviso, Monte Belluna, Castelfranco, and Padua. This squadron first appeared over Padua at 9 p.m., when a deafening bombardment fairly shook the city. Explosions began in the suburbs and gradually approached the centre of the city, where the streets, hotels and public places

Will Refuse to Fight.

PETROGRAD, Dec. 31.—A meeting of German and Austrian prisoners of war was held in Petrograd Saturday for the purpose of organizing international propaganda among prisoners in Russia. "General Allenby reports that on Friday his troops continued to drive back the enemy and advance their line to a depth of about two miles on a front of thirteen miles."

"The advance has given us the high grounds of Ras Arkub and Es Sufra—four miles from Jerusalem and one mile north of the Jericho road—Anataerram and Kulundia, the last two respectively east and west of the Naballa road and five or six miles north of Jerusalem—and Beitunia."

"The Irish troops met considerable opposition, which they overcame in spite of the difficulties of the ground."

"Although the enemy is falling back, the generally rough ground and the mountainous nature of the country makes pursuit slow and difficult. Our airplanes bombed the enemy's troops and transport on the Naballa road all day of the 28th with great effect."

Germany Wants Egypt.

AMSTERDAM, Dec. 31.—The Rheinische Westfälische Zeitung, organ of the Krupps, declares that the Entente Allies will regret the principles set forth at Brest-Litovsk, and argues that the political abandonment of Belgium by Germany must be conditional on the British evacuation of Egypt, which should revert to Turkey in accordance with the desire of its population.

One bomb struck in the middle of the main square, opening a huge crater, and killing one person and maiming many. Another struck a wing of the famous Palace of Giustiniani, near the St. Antonio Church, where the body of St. Anthony of Padua is buried, killing three women, one of whom happened to be of Austrian birth, and one the wife of an Italian officer who had just arrived in the city on a holiday leave. The Carmelite Church and Seminary also were struck and the oldest house in Venetia, dating from 1160, was damaged. One of the main hotels near the central square, and the Anglo-American Club were rendered uninhabitable from falling plaster. Two people were killed outright in front of the club. A member of one of the foreign missions visiting the city while going to his lodgings stumbled over the headless body of a woman. Only six soldiers were among the casualties. The other cities within the raided area escaped with little or no damage.

TO STENCIL PAPER SHADES

They Can Be Painted in Designs and Stripes to Match General Decorative Scheme.

The girl who stencils will recognize in her oiled stencil paper a possibility for making one of the new paper lamp shades. The oiling of the board of paper makes it translucent. They can be painted in designs and stripes to match the general decorative scheme. Used in the natural old-gold color they are equally lovely, especially if the base of the lamp is of a solid bright color.

Another way to treat the paper shade is to paste cut-out designs from cretonne on the paper and paint in the background with black enamel thinned out as much as possible. This method makes the light shine through the colored designs and leaves the background opaque. Such a shade should not be used, however, where there is only one lamp in the room and where plenty of light is needed.

A clever way of mellowing the light from these more decidedly designed paper shades is to cover the outside with a layer of delicate gauze in a deep cream or rose color. This will not interfere with the effect of the design, but will prove to give a much softer lighting effect than the plain shade.

Khaki-Colored Trench Coat.

Something for the soldiers and something for the sailors—what could please better the small girl's heart this autumn? Here is a decidedly knowing trench coat—khaki colored, if you please, and supplied with shiny buttons, buckled belt and plenty of pockets. And here a delightful sailor cap made of black velvet so that it may look smart with the khaki brown coat; and with U. S. navy in blue letters on a strap of white kid.

As for the indemnification of Belgium, the Minister pointed out that this had been promised by the Allies.

CONSUMPTION.

JOHN BROWN had noticed for some time that he was not up to the mark. In the morning he felt very well, but through the day he became tired, sleepy, and a little feverish. He had had a slight tickling cough for a month or two, but did not cough up anything. One afternoon he felt a warmth behind his breastbone, and at the same time he had a salty taste in his mouth. Following a tickling in his throat he coughed and brought up a few teaspoonfuls of bright red blood.

This alarmed his friends very much, and he turned pale, his hands were cold and perspiration broke out on his forehead. His mother sent for the doctor, who examined his nose, throat, and chest, and finally told him the blood came from his chest. He was placed in bed and told to keep quiet and that he need not have any fear for the bleeding. The physician took a sample of the material that John coughed up and found, as he suspected, that he was suffering from tuberculosis of the lungs. Consumption is the cause of spitting of blood in nine cases out of ten. Other causes are pneumonia, congestion, bronchitis, heart disease, aneurism, menstrual trouble, and scurvy. One out of every twenty-five cases of consumption starts with a slight hemorrhage. In one out of every six cases there is no other symptom. In two out of every three cases there is nothing to bring on a hemorrhage. The patient when quiet notices a salty taste, has a little tickling, coughs, and up comes the blood.

These early hemorrhages are never fatal. But the appearance of blood frightens most people, and perhaps it is a good thing to have the hemorrhage, because it is a reliable danger signal.

A patient of this kind should be kept quiet in bed for a few days. He usually needs no medicine, except in cases where he is very much frightened or shocked, when the doctor may give him some sedative. He must not get stimulants such as whiskey, aromatic spirits of ammonia, etc. If the side from which he is bleeding can be distinguished he should lie on that side.

If there is no return of hemorrhage after a few days he may get out in the open air. Horseback riding will be good exercise for him, and he may do a little outdoor work. Outdoor air and good food are the requisites for cure.

Above all things, a patient who has had a slight hemorrhage—and every other consumptive—should avoid the use of the numerous advertised "Cures for Consumption." None of them are of any value in the treatment of this disease; some of them are positively harmful.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Answers to questions pertinent to public health will from time to time be made in this column. The questions should be short and to the point. If it is not advisable to reply through this column, answer will be made by letter if stamped envelope is enclosed.

1.—Responsibility in cases of Communicable Diseases. A.A.G., Port Colborne.

Q.—In a case of scarlet fever or other contagious disease is the local board of health obliged to take care of the patient, provide nurses, doctors, and medicine?

A.—The Public Health Act, Section 58, Sub-Section 1 and 2, refers to this question as follows:—

"58.—(1) If any person coming from abroad, or residing in any municipality within Ontario, is infected, or has recently been infected with, or exposed to, any communicable disease to which this section is by the Regulations made applicable, the medical officer of health or local board shall make effective provision for the public safety by removing such person to a separate house, or by otherwise isolating him, and by providing medical attendance, medicine, nurses, and other assistance and necessities for him.

"(2) The corporation of the municipality shall be entitled to recover from such person the amount expended in providing such medical attendance, medicine, nurses, and other assistance and necessities for him, but not the expenditure incurred in providing a separate house or in otherwise isolating him. 2 Geo. V. c. 58, s. 58."

RECOVERY OF EXPENSES

The communicable diseases referred to in this section are: Smallpox, scarlet fever, diphtheria, chicken-pox, whooping-cough, measles, typhoid fever, cholera, bubonic plague, leprosy, epidemic anterior-polio-myelitis, and epidemic cerebro-spinal meningitis.

The Home Town.

Most people grow up with the home-town feeling for the old town—the town where they were youngsters, where they knew every kitten and puppy, every street and every alley, every cracker barrel and every candy counter, everybody and everything, at least for many a block around. It was not, of course a feeling of which you were uncomfortably conscious. As likely as not you never knew that you had it until house where the one rich family lived, and the patched-up cabin where the one poor family lived were so familiar to you that you were immediately conscious of every new sign in the store window and every new patch in the cabin roof. And if, perhaps, you lived in a much larger town, the distant smoke, the insistent clamor, the crowds, and the rush of traffic were the things you were looking for and the things that satisfied the home-town feeling.

ODD GIRDLES USED

Are Designed to Take the Place of Draperies on Skirts.

Some of Them Closely Resemble Little Waistcoats Formerly Worn as Suit Accompaniment.

In designing skirts for fall and winter, plaited and straight-line effects are shown in far greater number than are the draped skirts. Virtually the only kind of drapery featured consists of low placed loops on either side, with the skirt proper narrowing to the hem.

Odd girdles and belts are designed to take the place of draperies, and in addition to the clever Spanish girdle here shown, another is the "waistcoat" girdle. This closely resembles the little waistcoats that were shown by some dress accessory designers during the past season as suit accompaniments. Of course when designed as part of a skirt it is attached to and becomes a part of the skirt. It slopes up over each hip and is cut in points in front. Frequently two rows of buttons are set on to give a double-breasted appearance, and again a single row of buttons centering the front of the girdle aids in the waistcoat simulation.

The actual fastening of the girdle is at one side. Usually it is equipped with one or two tiny "change" pockets.

Another odd and very attractive girdle shown on one side of the new satin skirts is a 6-inch wide section of the fabric laid in very fine knife plaits.

Rows of stitching hold it in the center, and at the upper and lower edges it flares. Of course a girdle of this kind could be worn becomingly only by a very slender woman, where line rather than curve was the dominant note.

Plaids and stripes are being used extensively in the development of

SIMPLE WINTER GOWN

Though it is simple, and of necessity war times will make for simplicity in winter gowns and winter fashions, this creation for both for and informal wear is adorable. It is of peach georgette gracefully draped and richly trimmed with bands of ver fox. A distinctive feature is use of long sleeves with low décolleté. A dainty ciel blue ribbon encircles the waist and a nosegay combines all the colors of the gown is placed on one shoulder.

EMBROIDERY TO BE REVIVED

France Determined to Re-Establish her business in embroidery. Her women are needleworkers of importance.

Paris is quite determined, that is certain, on the vast re-establishment of her business in embroidery. Her women are needleworkers of importance. None is so good on this planet, probably, unless isolated exceptions in Indian and Persian countries be taken into account.

Her gentlewomen are trained, as gentlewomen used to be trained in olden days, before the sewing machine and ready-to-wear garments, in the art of holding a needle filled with thread and accomplishing work with it.

Money has been scarce among people in aristocratic segments of French life, and the war has brought about the same kind of situation which existed during the Revolution; those who are too proud to work for a living in other epochs will now do under the national strain.

Also, there are thousands of foreign refugees and French women of other classes of life and society must be supported. France does believe in the nonproducing consumer. And so these women and men,

Most people grow up with the home-town feeling for the old town—the town where they were youngsters, where they knew every kitten and puppy, every street and every alley, every cracker barrel and every candy counter, everybody and everything, at least for many a block around. It was not, of course a feeling of which you were uncomfortably conscious. As likely as not you never knew that you had it until you came back after a summer in the country, or, perhaps, came home from school for the holidays. It was then that the home-town feeling grew large within you—a fine, big, warm feeling.

If it happened that you lived in a medium-sized town in those days, the light of the station was a deeply satisfying thing. It seemed, as you rattled along in the little old hack, past the courthouse square and across the one-street car line, that you had come back to yourself—a very comfortable sort of feeling indeed.

Perhaps you lived in or near a much smaller village, but it was the same home-town feeling you had as you climbed under the heavy, horse-smelling robe into the buggy and rode down the street. The general store, the white church, the brick house where the one rich family lived, and the patched-up cabin where the one poor family lived, were so familiar to you that you were immediately conscious of every new sign in the store window and every new patch in the cabin roof. And if, perhaps, you lived in a much larger town, the distant smoke, the insistent clamor, the crowds, and the rush of traffic were the things you were looking for and the things that satisfied the home-town feeling.

What He Was Showing.

A young man sitting in a subway car with legs crossed and one foot showing a highly polished shoe and silk sock extended so far into the aisle as to make it almost impossible for people to pass was brought to a sense of his disregard for others by three young women who sat opposite. One said, "I wonder if he is showing his foot or his shoe?" The second said loud enough to be heard above the car clatter, "I think he wants to show his clocked socks—watch it." "No," said the third; "he's only showing his bad manners." The foot came down and was lost in the crowd which got off at the next station.—New York Tribune.

The Spanish Girdle.

Black satin skirts are to be extremely smart, and these are often of the two-tier type, the skirt consisting of two wide flat plaited ruffles of equal width.

LAMPSHADE BAG IS NOVELTY

When Properly Constructed It Can Be Made to Look as Though It Came From the Orient.

Bags have come to be important accessories of dress. Nowadays a woman has as many bags as a man has pockets; but, of course, she is privileged to carry but one bag at a time. The creative ability has surely been overworked by some persons, according to the variety of the bags seen on the market. There is scarcely a shape, a material, a design or a combination of colors that has not been brought into service.

The novel thing of the moment is the lampshade bag. This, as its name implies, is made of a lampshade, the wicker variety. The shade, of course, is inverted, the narrower end forming the bottom of the bag. The inside of the shade is lined with silk of any color one prefers—the handsome figured silks are very good for the purpose. Allow sufficient silk to form a deep bag. If the shade is not very deep the silk can make up for what the shade lacks in depth. Finish the top with a hem and through it run cords to form the handle. Weight the ends of the cords with bead tassels and put one of the tassels at the bottom of the bag. The result will be a bag that looks as though it came from the Orient.

The Newest Veils.

Veils having square, ring, chain, pear drop, egg-shaped, crescent moon and the full moon dots, are worn in New York.

Also veils called the nightingale, acorn, berry or the lotus flower are shown.

Handbag Is Held by Its Weight.

A handbag that holds itself to its wearer's wrist by means of its own weight has been invented by a New York man. The leather handle is fitted with two metal slides on one end of which is a roller. These slides are fitted to the handle straps and are connected by a short piece of leather of the same width as the handle.

When the handle is slipped over the arm the metal slides are pulled up by the weight of the bag so that the handle fits close around the wrist and it is then impossible for the handle to slide over the hand.

people in aristocratic segments. French life, and the war has brought about the same kind of situation which existed during the Revolution; those who are too proud to work for the living in other epochs will now do so under the national strain.

Also, there are thousands of Belgian refugees and French women of other classes of life and society who must be supported. France does not believe in the nonproducing consumer.

And so these women and men, too old even to serve in that territory service of bearing the wounded from the trenches of the hills, which has been given to those who do not bear arms and who are sure of their footing at their nerves, are given the gentle service of embroidery for the world's clothes. So every woman who buys a gown that is embroidered in France is helping France.

How Wheat Came to Earth.

A classic account of the distribution of wheat over the primeval world shows that Ceres, having taught her favorite, Triptolemus, the art of agriculture and the science of breadmaking, gave him her chariot, a celestial vehicle, and that in it he traveled night and day, distributing this valuable bread grain among all nations of the earth.

A Novel Revenge.

Cook—Yes; my mistress is a prim donna and a horrible creature. She treats me like the dirt beneath her feet, but I revenge myself by opening the drawing room window when she is not at home and by howling with my might so that the neighbors must think her voice is cracked.—Fliegen Blaetter.

Hot Rocks Waste Away.

Erosion proceeds with considerable rapidity in the desert region of the southwest, notwithstanding the scarcity of continuously running water. The rock disintegration is accelerated by the great daily variations in temperature. The rocks are heated to 125 degrees F. or higher on the hot summer days and cool off rapidly at night to degrees or less, a difference of 50 degrees or more, and in spring or autumn, when the sun's heat is less, the night temperatures are relatively low.—Geological Survey Bulletin.

Time For Bed.

Mr. Dumley was making an event call, and Bobby, who was allowed sit up a little later than usual, put him the following question:

"Mr. Dumley, do you want to make 5 shillings in ten minutes?"

"Do I want to make 5 shillings in ten minutes?" laughed the young man. "Certainly I do. But how can I make 5 shillings in ten minutes, Bobby?"

"Mamma will give it to you." "I told papa that she would give 5 shillings to see you hold your tongue in ten minutes."—London Telegraph.

NEWS FOR SOLDIERS.

"The Canadian Daily Record" Circulated at the Front.

Although the large majority of Canadians are probably unaware of the fact, soldiers of the Dominion Overseas, even those in the trenches in France and Belgium, receive a daily paper filled with news from Canada. This little publication, which is of such immense value to the boys at the front because it contains news of home, is published in London and goes by the name of "The Canadian Daily Record." It is the latest development of the Canadian Military authorities in Canada and overseas to meet the demand of the Dominion's soldiers for news of their own country.

Ever since December, 1915, the military authorities at Ottawa have been trying to furnish the boys at the front with news. At first news cable despatches were sent from Canada to London, where they were printed in intelligence summaries which formed part of the divisional orders. This method proved unsatisfactory because these intelligence summaries did not reach the rank and file, and, moreover, at times pressure of purely military work sometimes crowded out the news. In October, 1916, the plan of printing news bulletins upon small slips of paper which were sent forward to the front through the Canadian postal corps, was adopted. This also proved a poor way of handling the news, because the slips were small, easily lost, and because of their unattractive form, not always read.

Finally, at the beginning of this year, it was decided to publish an interesting daily newspaper under the auspices of the Canadian War Records Office, London, a Government department headed by Lord Beaverbrook. The newspaper started with a modest circulation among units in France and Belgium and camps and hospitals in Great Britain, and was received with enthusiasm and a demand for more copies.

Owing to the appreciation expressed by officers and men, and at the suggestion of Sir George Perley, Sir Edward Kemp, in September, decided to extend the news service from Canada, and for this purpose to establish a news bureau in Ottawa to supply the material for the Canadian Daily Record. Captain William Wallace, M.C., formerly of The Toronto Star, who had been wounded and invalided to Canada, was placed in charge. The Canadian Daily Record now consists of four pages, magazine size, and each issue contains the happenings of the preceding twenty-four hours in Canada. The news is furnished from Ottawa by cable nightly, and through the medium of press clippings and special articles forwarded by mail. The Canadian Press Limited gives access to its news service free of charge. Thanks to the co-operation of the Canadian Army Postal Service, the paper reaches the majority of the units in France on the day of publication, containing news despatched on the previous day. It is hoped to so extend the circulation that every individual member of the Canadian Expeditionary Force can count on seeing the newspaper daily.

In a recent letter, Lord Beaverbrook, the head of the War Records Office, informed Sir Edward Kemp that The Canadian Daily Record had now attracted the attention of the Imperial authorities to such an extent that they might undertake the publication of a small journal along similar lines.

A Woman's Problem

How to Feel Well During Middle Life Told by Three Women Who Learned from Experience.

The Change of Life is a most critical period of a woman's existence, and neglect of health at this time invites disease and pain. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs. Read these letters:—

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I started the Change of Life five years ago. I always had a headache and backache with bearing down pains and I would have heat flashes very bad at times with dizzy spells and nervous feelings. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel like a new person and am in better health and no more troubled with the aches and pains I had before I took your wonderful remedy. I recommend it to my friends for I cannot praise it enough."—Mrs. MARGARET GRASSMAN, 759 N. Ringgold St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Beverly, Mass.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for nervousness and dyspepsia, when I was going through the Change of Life. I found it very helpful and I have always spoken of it to other women who suffer as I did and have had them try it and they also have received good results from it."—Mrs. GEORGE A. DUNBAR, 17 Roundy St., Beverly, Mass.

Erie, Pa.—"I was in poor health when the Change of Life started with me and I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, or I think I should not have got over it as easy as I did. Even now if I do not feel good I take the Compound and it restores me in a short time. I will praise your remedies to every woman for it may help them as it has me."—Mrs. E. KISSLING, 931 East 24th St., Erie, Pa.

No other medicine has been so successful in relieving woman's suffering as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Women may receive free and helpful advice by writing the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. Such letters are received and answered by women only and held in strict confidence.

Followed by Hoodoo.

Private I. H. Ferguson, of the 172nd Canadian Battalion, who afterwards transferred to the 54th and went to France, is not sure whether he is a lucky man or not. He was wounded at Vimy Ridge in April, and on proceeding to the base to be shipped to "Blighty" his train jumped the track. He received no further injuries, but was taken to the hospital at Etaples, where he was delayed for six weeks. The hospital ship which he should have caught but for the railroad accident, was torpedoed. He was sent back to the line again, and on receiving word of his wife's death in Canada, was granted furlough on compassionate grounds. When about to sail for Canada, he found that he could not proceed because he had insufficient

CONTROLLING RIVER FRESHETS

A Subject of Vital Importance to Western Ontario.

Mr. Breithaupt, a well known Canadian civil engineer, has given much time and thought to the problem of controlling destructive freshets on the Grand River and other streams that rise on the western plateau of Ontario and empty into the perimeter lakes or rivers that extend continuously from Kingston to Collingwood. The conclusions which he has arrived at, as the result of his personal observations and surveys, refer entirely to the Grand River, but, with necessary adaptations, his conclusions would apply to several other streams that rise on the same plateau at late to 1918.

Money has been scarce among the ople in aristocratic segments of ench life, and the war has brought out the same kind of situation which isted during the Revolution—these are too proud to work for their ing in other epochs will now do so der the national strain.

Also, there are thousands of Belan refugees and French women in her classes of life and society who ist be supported. France does not lieve in the nonproducing consumer. So every woman who buys a wn that is embroidered in France is lping France.

MANY ACTIVITIES.

Some of the Duties Undertaken by Canadians in France.

Canada's part in the war is not confined by any means to the splen- did troops under General Currie, now beleaguering Lens. There are scores of officers and men in various Imperial services fitting effectively into the British machine. In scores of places one would never suspect there are Canadian battalions—their numbers now are legion—which in the aggregate easily make up a large force. Smart young Canadians are naval officers in every port that feeds the front, keeping to the tradi- tions of the British navy. Then, too, there are the flying men, in both services, their range perhaps the greatest of all, sometimes eyes of the Grand Fleet itself, and on this Western front a majority in many squadrons.

To-day the Colonel of Canadian Railway Troops invited me to accompany him to an exhibition he was giving to French, Belgian, and British engineers. He walked along a new main military line built with rails from Canada's Government railways. The ties had been cut in a miniature Canadian sawmill not many miles south, in woods where the Kaiser's Uhlans roamed early in the war. Out in the large yard there was a big steam shovel eating away the side of the hill, filling a truck a minute—the Belgian officer timed the great engine—to go forward where the light railway crews, Cana- dians there, too, were ballasting new lines. Fritz's airmen spotted it one day and for weeks afterwards his artillery searched for them, wasting hundreds of rounds of am- munition. The Germans thought it was some new mastodon of destruc- tion. It used to work on a Cana- dian Pacific grade in Northern Onta- rio.

When the Huns broke back along the coast they left various bits of tangled machinery. The Canadian Colonel gathered these up, command- eered a big railway truck, and built a track-layer in his own black- smith's shop.

At rail head there is a young Cana- dian railway transport officer who used to be train despatcher at a little place on the prairie. In the next yard another officer (in Canada he was general manager of a great elec- tric railway company) is quarter- master for railway stores.

The dockmaster at the great port away back was in the stevedoring business on the Pacific coast. Under his command were more transporters and cranes than Vancouver and Victoria combined will ever see for years. In the dock was a tramp ship straight from his home on the Pacific coast.

A colonel from Nova Scotia with his Labor battalion, men from all parts of the Dominion who "know the job, had trebled the port for unloading the rails. At another dock I found a colonel, an Ontario member of Parliament, handling a brigade of Chinese coolies piling lum- ber, and even the native interpreter claimed Canadian association—with sawmills on False Creek.—The Canadian Eye Witness.

he is a lucky man or not. He was wounded at Vimy Ridge in April, and on proceeding to the base to be shipped to "Blighty" his train junc- ed the track. He received no further injuries, but was taken to the hos- pital at Etaples, where he was de- layed for six weeks. The hospital ship which he should have caught but for the railroad accident, was torpedoed. He was sent back to the line again, and on receiving word of his wife's death in Canada, was granted furlough on compassionate grounds. When about to sail for Cana- da, he found that he could not pro- ceed because he had insufficient funds to pay for his return passage. He cabled home for money, but be- fore it arrived, a sailing took place, and the private was returned to his base. Ferguson is wondering if he is being followed by a "Hoodoo," or if his guardian angel is delaying him for a safe passage to his home in Kelowna, B.C.

An Official Story-Teller.

In several of the public libraries of Canada story-telling to children has for some years been a special feature. Each Saturday morning from fifty to one hundred children assemble at the library in a room set apart for the purpose and called the "Children's Room." The ages of the children vary from six to fourteen years. At St. John, New Brunswick, story-telling has been continued now for three years. This year it has been found advisable to divide the children according to age and to hold two classes of half an hour each. The work has steadily grown in interest, and the demand for books of a less trivial type justify the work of the committee in charge. During the summer, when opportunity of- fers and a story-teller of note is a guest of the city, notice is given to the library, and it is often possible to have a special session.

A Daring Feat.

Snooks was one of those conceited, make believe, bold hunters and was always spinning his yarns about his ex- periences in Africa, and he generally wound up by saying he never yet saw a lion he feared. One night after he had finished yarning he was a little taken aback by one of his audience, who said:

"That's nothing. I have laid down and actually slept among lions in their wild, natural state."

"I don't believe that. I'm no fool," said the bold hunter.

"It's the truth, though."

"You slept among lions in their wild, natural state?"

"Yes; I certainly did."

"Can you prove it? Were they Afri- can?"

"Well, not exactly African lions. They were dandelions."—Chicago Her- ald.

Aliens in Medieval Times.

Medieval England had a rough and ready way of insuring the good behav- ior of aliens. According to the Sax- on law of frankpledge, which remained in force until 1370, no "hosteler" might entertain a foreigner longer than a day and a night unless he undertook to answer for his guest's behavior. No foreigners were allowed to keep hotels in London. Some became naturalized in order to qualify for this privilege. Even these were not suffered to com- pete on equal terms with the natives, being required to keep their houses "in the heart of the city" and rigidly excluded from the more profitable re- gions near the Thames.

Canadian civil engineer, has given much time and thought to the prob- lem of controlling destructive inun- dations on the Grand River and other streams that rise on the western plateau of Ontario and empty into the perimeter lakes or rivers that extend continuously from Kingston to Collingwood. The conclusions at which he has arrived, as the result of his personal observations and sur- veys, refer entirely to the Grand River, but, with necessary adapta- tions, his conclusions would apply to several other streams that rise on the same plateau and empty into the St. Lawrence system. His recom- mendations: the Thane, Maitland, Sam- geen, Sydenham, Beaver, Nottawasaga, and Credit. All of these co- operate in draining the freshest water from the plateau with great rapid- ity, leaving it unnaturally and at times disastrously arid, while the ac- cumulated waters are destroying bridges, dams, and buildings in their rushing descent to the level of the lakes.

Speaking of the Grand River, Mr. Breithaupt says the most that can be effected is retardation of the waters by checking them with small dams built at suitable spots on the tributary streams. These would have an effect analogous to that of the logs and other debris that held back the water when the country was forested, and when beaver dams were numerous. The more of such artifi- cial dams there are the greater the amount of retardation, and the less the sum total of freshest destruction. The effect in ameliorating the clima- te of the plateau by retaining so much retarded water must be quite appreciable, and the larger the amount of it the greater the effect of the water on the air over the whole plateau. Before the advent of the settler the swamps, which are mostly filled up lakes, held much water like springs. Arterial drainage has solidified many of them, and this is another reason for holding up arti- ficially the equivalent of the water that has been artificially and pro- mptly carried away. According to Mr. Breithaupt much benefit has already resulted from local works, it is worth considering whether the whole problem is not of sufficient im- portance and difficulty to be taken up as a provincial enterprise.

Pork Exports.

The sacrifice that Canada is mak- ing to supply the Allies with food is illustrated in figures regarding her pork exports that have been made public by the United States Food Ad- ministration.

In Canada, recognizing the ex- treme need for the saving of certain foods for the supply of the Allies, we have taken upon ourselves the task of reducing our consumption of wheat and hog products to two- thirds of the normal consumption.

The pork products exports from Canada to the allied countries in 1913 amounted to 36,000,000 pounds, and in 1914 to 23,500,000 pounds. This was increased in 1915 to 144,000,000 pounds and in 1917 to 207,000,000 pounds. Canadian pork and bacon has to a very large extent replaced the Danish product, formerly the chief of Great Britain's external supplies, outside the United States.

The Red Cross Society

The patriotic tea given New Year's Day, at the Curling Rink, was a bright and gay affair, as well as a grand success socially and financially.

The handsome Club Room looked its best, decorated with flags and Christmas bells, the bright grate fire giving a warm welcome to all.

The dining hall, in charge of Mrs. W. A. Grange and Mrs. W. Baker, was most attractive, in rich tones of red and green, the large candelabra in the centre of the tea table throwing soft lights over a miniature Santa Claus on either side. Later the jolly old saint was seen descending the chimney of a rustic home bringing with him all the joys of Christmas side.

Mrs. A. W. Grange and Mrs. Geo. Hawley made tea, Mrs. F. F. Miller and Mrs. J. W. Robinson, the coffee, while a merry group of young girls served dainty but simple refreshments.

An interesting feature of the day, was the games played on the rink. The playing was excellent, and was followed with keen interest by the many guests, anxious to become more familiar with the art of curling.

The Red Cross feel deeply indebted to the curlers, not only for allowing the Society to make financial gain, but also for the handsome donations given, and words fail to express the invaluable assistance given the committee in charge, by Messrs. W. A. Grange, C. I. Maybee and W. C. Smith. Mrs. Maybee who had charge of all the arrangements, has again proved her ability as leader, and she and her co-workers, are to be congratulated upon the success of the day. The net proceeds amounted to $90.00.

The Society wishes to thank Mrs. John Soby for the sweater coat which was raffled New Year's Day and brought a handsome sum for the Red Cross. Mrs. Maybee held the lucky ticket.

A donation of money has been received with thanks from Miss Jesse McBain, and one of $2.00 from Mrs. H. R. Paul, Roblin; and for the Belgian Relief Fund, $5.00 from Miss Rita Harrison, and $5.00 from Miss Maggie Harrison.

The regular monthly meeting of the Executive Committee will be held in the Council Chamber, on Saturday, January 5th, at 2 p.m.

All are welcome to the hall on Saturday—refreshments will be served.

Mr. Eugene Richardson does not wish to be credited with the whole responsibility for the Badge of Order lately designed executed and placed in position as an indicator to the location of our work-room as Mr. Richardson informs us that we are also indebted to Mr. W. D. Midmer, whom we wish herewith to thank sincerely for his part of the work.

The Chapter has recently generously contributed to those suffering from the catastrophe at Halifax, in support of the Home established for orphans and friendless children created so by the disaster, by the Daughters of the Empire, also a generous box of hand-knitted socks for the sailors of the North Atlantic Cruiser Squadron.

Come to the work-room as frequently as possible as there is much necessary work to be done.

WONDERFUL STUFF! LIFT OUT YOUR CORNS

Apply a few drops then lift corns or calluses off with fingers—no pain.

No humbug! Any corn, whether hard, soft or between the toes, will loosen right up and lift out, without a particle of pain or soreness.

This drug is called freezone and is a compound of ether discovered by a Cincinnati man.

Ask at any drug store for a small bottle of freezone, which will cost but a trifle, but is sufficient to rid one's feet of every corn or callus.

Put a few drops directly upon any tender, aching corn or callus. Instantly the soreness disappears and shortly the corn or callus will loosen and can be lifted off with the fingers.

This drug freezone doesn't eat out the corns or calluses but shrivels them without even irritating the surrounding skin.

Just think! No pain at all; no soreness or smarting when applying it or afterwards. If your druggist don't have freezone have him order it for you.

LILIUOKALANI AT 80.

Making a Hawaiian-English Dictionary for Use in Schools.

Hawaii's immortal singer, author of "Aloha Oe," known as Queen Lil in the days when she ruled the Hawaiian islands, is now compiling a Hawaiian-English dictionary for use in the schools of the islands, though she is now nearly 80 years old. This was learned lately from Mrs. Dr. Atcherley of 1743 Nelson street, Vancouver, a cousin of the former ruler.

Mrs. Atcherley spends every winter in the former queen's company. She last saw her distinguished relative on February 6 of this year, on which date she sailed for her home in Vancouver. Mrs. Atcherley is the wife of Dr. Atcherley of the royal navy, who is now in active service on the Atlantic. He is a descendant of the famous Sir Roger Atcherley, who gave Leadenhall market, London, to the poor. Mrs. Atcherley's full name is Princess Haahoe-Kabeihemalie-Kahikioia Atcherley. She is a cousin of Queen Liliuokalani and a foster daughter of King Kalakaua and his queen consort, Kapio-Lani, and was reared in the islands. She now has in her parlor a treasured legacy from the late king, the portraits of himself and his consort painted in 1885 by Petrovitz, R. A.

Mrs. Atcherley said former Queen Liliuokalani celebrated her 79th birthday on Tuesday, September 2. She was born in 1838 and during her life have occurred the stormiest monarchial and republican crises in the history of the Hawaiian island group.

Queen Liliuokalani is now an old woman whose thoughts are much on the future. She is a true Christian and has left behind all the worldly strife which marred her middle life. To-day she lives in a splendid house near Honolulu, visited by her direct relatives, but keeping aloof from the general tourist public which still endeavors to see the famous figure of the great political game of the early '90's.

Only on her birthdays is the public allowed to approach her. Then she sits in state on her front porch and visitors walk by, bowing to her and receiving in return the stately salutation of the former queen. Great throngs of natives and of white people attend this function, the whites mainly through curiosity, the natives through deep respect. Also, on these days, the royal band plays at the former queen's residence.

ONTARIO GENERAL ELECTION TO BE HELD ON JUNE 24

The Globe was informed Tuesday that the general election for the Province of Ontario is to be held next June, probably on Monday, June 24. Sir William Hearst, Premier, when spoken to about the matter, said the Government had not even considered it.

Another interesting rumor was that Mr. Charles McCrea, M.P.P. for Sudbury, is to be taken into the Cabinet succeeding the Hon. T. W. McGarry Provincial Treasurer, who has not been enjoying good health for some time.

It is stated that Sir William Hearst will continue to act as Minister of Agriculture until after the coming session of the Legislature, when Mr. George S. Henry, M.P.P. for East York, or one of the other farmers on the Government side of the House will be appointed to the portfolio. It is understood the Government is hesitating about giving the position to a man living so near to Toronto as Mr. Henry.

A HAPPY HERO.

Letter by Canadian Used to Rouse American Patriotism.

As an illustration of the lofty sentiments possessed of men who die on the European battlefield in the war for democracy and a reminder to Americans who may be backward in contributing to the second Liberty Loan for the same cause, the Liberty Loan Committee of New York has made public the last letter written by Captain V. G. Tupper, of the 16th Canadian-Scottish Battalion, to his father, Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper before his death at the battle of Vim Ridge last April. The soldier wrote:

"My Dear Father,—I am writing one of these 'in case' letters for the third time, and, of course, I hope you will never have to read it. If you are reading it now, you will know that your youngest son went under as proud as Punch on the most glorious day of his life. I am taking my company 'over the top' for a mile in the biggest push that has ever been launched in the world, and I trust that it is going to be the greatest factor towards peace.

"Dad, you can't imagine the wonderful feeling; a man thinks some thing like this: 'Well, if I am going to die, this is worth it a thousand times.

"I have 'been over' two or three times before, but never with a company of my own. Think of it—hundred and fifty officers and men who will follow you to hell, if need be.

"I don't want any of you dead people to be sorry for me, although of course, you will in a way. You will miss me, but you will be proud of me. Mind you, I know what I am up against and that the odds are against me. I am not going in the way I did the first time, just for sheer devilment and curiosity. I have seen this game for two years, and I'd like it and feel that my place is here.

"So much for that. I want to thank you from the bottom of my heart for all your loving kindness to me. This war has done wonders to me and makes me realize lots of things I would not have done otherwise. I could write a book about it but you know what I mean.

"Good-bye, dear father and mother, and all of you. Again I say

"I lay helpless when my wife ordered our first bottle of Tanlac from El Paso, Tex.," writes Harry E. Scott of Dragoon, Ariz., under date of Nov. 15th, in telling of his remarkable recovery from an illness that had defied the skill of the best physicians for over two years, to say nothing of his failure to find relief at leading health resorts.

Mr. Scott's voluntary statement has the true ring of sincerity and gratitude and is unquestionably one of the most remarkable ever given in connection with a proprietary medicine.

Mr. Scott's letter was addressed to C. F. Moss, a well-known druggist of Benson, Ariz., who has the Tanlac agency for that town, and was forwarded by Mr. Moss to the Tanlac offices in Atlantic. His letter follows:

Dragoon, Ariz., Nov. 15th, 1917.
Mr. C. F. Moss,
Benson, Ariz.

Dear Sir: As you expressed a desire to hear more about my case, I will try and tell you part of it. I was down and out nearly all the time for two years with rheumatism and stomach trouble, and went to eight doctors, two of whom were osteopaths. Three of them refused to take my case, saying it was incurable, and the others might as well have done so, as they did me no good. I guess I have taken a barrel of medicines internally and externally. I also went to Hot Springs and out of all that was ever done I never got over one week's relief at a time.

After going down to one hundred and sixteen pounds—which is very light for a six footer—I kept getting worse until I couldn't move, even to feed myself, had no desire to eat and couldn't sleep more than two hours a night. Some of the officials of the mine, of which I am foreman, would call to see me then go out and say, 'poor old Scott has fired his last man.' My wife thought I would never get out of bed alive, and she knew condition better than anybody else.

At last, when I lay helpless my wife ordered a bottle of Tanlac from the druggist at El Paso, Texas, which was the nearest place we could get it at that time. One evening about four days after I began taking Tanlac I ate a fair meal and enjoyed it, the first in many months. By the time I had taken half of the first bottle I thought I had a good appetite, but when I finished my second bottle I could hardly eat enough to satisfy me. Well, I have just finished my ninth bottle, have gained eighteen pounds and am back on the job every day.

I have converted lots of sufferers to them all like it did me—their stomach trouble, nervousness and rheumatism all yield to Tanlac. Mrs. Scott and myself are willing to go before a notary and make affidavit as to the truth of every statement in this letter, which you are at liberty to publish and use for the benefit of others.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) HARRY E. SCOTT.

Accompanying the above was a letter from the Moss Pharmacy addressed to the Tanlac Offices, Atlantic, Ga., referring in the highest terms to Mr. Scott as a man and citizen with the added statement that both Mr. Scott and his wife were ready at any time to go before a Notary Public and swear that Tanlac is the only medicine he had ever taken that had any effect on his rheumatism and stomach trouble.

He also stated he had another customer, an old gentleman, who had taken five bottles of Tanlac and had gained twelve to fifteen pounds and that they were building up a large business on Tanlac, etc.

Tanlac is sold in Napanee at WALLACE'S Drug Store.

near Honolulu, visited by her direct relatives, but keeping aloof from the general tourist public which still endeavors to see the famous figure of the great political game of the early '90's.

Only on her birthdays is the public allowed to approach her. Then she sits in state on her front porch and visitors walk by, bowing to her and receiving in return the stately salutation of the former queen. Great throngs of natives and of white people attend this function, the whites mainly through curiosity, the natives through deep respect. Also, on these days, the royal band plays at the former queen's residence. It is led by the original band leader, the German musician who was bandmaster through the last regime of royalty in the Sandwich islands.

On other days the queen sees no one, though tourists frequently stroll through her gardens in hope of a distant glimpse. The former queen motors for an hour each day, and spends considerable time in her garden. She is now engaged in a work which shows that her mental powers are not impaired. She is compiling a Hawaiian-English dictionary for use in the government schools, and already has 4,000 words in the work.

When King Kalakaua died in San Francisco on January 2, 1891, he was succeeded by Queen Liliuokalani. The white people, aroused to fighting pitch by an attempt of the queen to bring the kingdom under purely native rule and control, called on the United States Government to send troops to protect American property. A small body of troops was sent. Under protest, and acting on the advice of her ministers, the queen surrendered to these troops to avoid bloodshed. A treaty of annexation was negotiated the next month with the United States, but this was withdrawn by President Cleveland when he came into power in March, 1893.

The United States Government then ordered the reinstatement of the queen. The republican government which had been set up when she relinquished office was under Sanford B. Dole, who was president. Backed by the whites and with the sympathy of many Americans at home, he refused to allow the queen's reinstatement. The United States then refused to intervene to reinstate the queen.

On July 4, 1894, the republic was proclaimed. A plot during that year to overthrow the republic was frustrated, and the queen was arrested. The plot was broken up on January 6, 1895, and on January 24 she renounced her claim to the throne and swore allegiance to the republic. On September 17 she was granted conditional pardon and on August 12, 1897, under President McKinley, the Hawaiian islands were annexed to the United States. S. B. Dole, the first president of the republic, was made the first governor. Seven years ago Queen Liliuokalani was granted a pension of $40,000 per year by the American Government.

"Blighty Corner."

One place which many Canadian soldiers visit in Paris is the British "Blighty Corner," officially known as the "Foyer du Soldat Anglais." is conducted by a group of English and American women as a place where Canadian, Australian, and New Zealand soldiers who cannot go home for their ten days' leave may find a welcome. It has all the facilities of an up-to-date club, with perhaps a little more of the air of "home" than an ordinary club. It is served every afternoon to all comers by the wives of British officers and there is every afternoon an evening program of music and entertainment.

"My visit has given me much pleasure," wrote the Prince of Wales in the visitors' book. "Ditto" wrote the Duke of Connaught.

On the occasion of the Duke of Connaught's visit the cheers of the Canadian soldiers were so lusty as to offend the ears of some of the residents of a fashionable hotel in the Place Vendome nearby. They filed complaint with the police, but the police replied: "They are authorized to make as much noise as they please. The British soldiers were not told to make less noise when they blew up the mines at Messines."

Twice a week the men at "Blighty Corner" are taken to visit the corners of Paris. An interesting incident occurred this week when a party visited the Church of Jean d'Arc. The priest presented the with souvenir medals representing Joan of Arc. "But there are on three Roman Catholics among them," he was told. "It does no matter," replied the broad-minded priest. "They all serve the same Master and General."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE EXPRESS

Dear Sir:—As a citizen of Napanee and having attended the recent nomination meeting I am strongly impressed with the importance of a pointing as our controllers men will have a reasonable heavy stake in the town. The ordinary shareholder any company would never think voting for a person to form part of the management who had no personal interest in the company's success. Then why should we vote for anyone whose principal qualification was that he excelled in making chin-music at the council meetings, or before appreciative audiences. Also be able to put his personal belongings into a sack and disappear some morning without leaving a ripple on the municipal tide. But rather secure men who have a deep personal interest in the comfort of the citizens and the prosperity of the town. While I admit that there may be men in existence who may be willing to sacrifice their talents and talents exclusively for the benefit of others, still they are like "wing horses" so scarce that it is not worth while looking for them.

I remain,
Respectfully yours,

The congregation of St. Paul's Presbyterian church held its annual bazaar, oyster supper and concert in Victoria Hall on Thursday afternoon and evening. The crowd, which attended could scarcely be accommodated.

On Tuesday last while driving along the island shore near Stella on the ice W. H. Preston had the misfortune to come on a thin spot, and his horse dropped through. He called loudly for help, which was soon on the scene. The horse was recovered, though suffering from severe cold and exposure.

A concert was held by the teachers and scholars of S.S. No. 5, 3rd concession, in the school house on Friday evening last. A good programme was rendered. Great credit is due the teacher, Miss L. It has all the facilities of an up-to-date club, with perhaps a little more of the air of "home" than an ordinary club. Tea is served every afternoon to all coming by the wives of British officers, and there is every afternoon and evening a program of music and entertainment. "My visit has given me much pleasure," wrote the Prince of Wales in the visitors' book. "Ditto" wrote the Duke of Connaught. On the occasion of the Duke of Connaught's visit the cheers of the Canadian soldiers were so lusty as to add to the ears of some of the residents of a fashionable hotel in the centre of the city. They filed a complaint with the police, but the police replied: "They are authorized to make as much noise as they like. The British soldiers were told to make less noise when they blew up the mines at Messines." Twice a week the men at "Blighty Corner" are taken to visit the old ruins of Paris. An interesting incident occurred this week when a party visited the Church of Jeanne d'Arc. The priest presented them with souvenir medals representing the city of Arc. "But there are only a few Roman Catholics among them," he was told. "It does not matter," replied the broad-minded priest. "They all serve the same God and General."

THE EDITOR OF THE EXPRESS

Sir:—As a citizen of Napanee, having attended the recent nomination meeting I am strongly impressed with the importance of appointing as our Controllers men who are a reasonable heavy stake in the community. The ordinary shareholder in a company would never think of going for a person to form part of management who had no personal stake in the company's success. Why should we vote for anyone whose principal qualification was that he excelled in making chin-music at council meetings, or before appreciative audiences. Also be able to put personal belongings into a satchel and disappear some morning without leaving a ripple on the municipal waters. But rather secure men who had deep personal interest in the comfort of the citizens and the prosperity of the town. While I admit that there may be men in existence who are willing to sacrifice their time and talents exclusively for the benefit of others, still they are like "winged asses" so scarce that it is not worth looking for them.

Respectfully yours,
A FELLOW CITIZEN.

A concert was held by the teachers and scholars of S.S. No. 5, 3rd concession, in the school house on Friday evening last. A good programme was rendered. Great credit is due the teacher, Miss L. McMullen, for the success of the entertainment. The schools have all closed for the holidays, and the teachers have departed for their homes. The island young ladies who have been teaching in different parts of Ontario are also here for the holidays.

George Beaubien, who has been visiting friends at Collins Bay, has returned home.

Capt. A. Glenn, has returned from sailing on the upper lakes. Miss L. Cochrane, nurse-in-training in Kingston General Hospital, has returned after spending a week with her parents here.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. McFarn left last week to spend the winter with their daughter at Three Rivers, Que.

H. Tugwell has returned home from the west.

WILTON

The Xmas tree entertainment given by the young ladies and children of this place was a decided success. The school teacher, Miss P. B. Moore, drilled sixteen young ladies for a flag drill, which was certainly deserving of much praise to all who took part. It is said to be the best drill ever put on here.

The Municipal pot has begun to boil, some are proposing acclamation; hope all will be satisfied.

The friends of Mrs. Ernest Wright are very much grieved to hear of her sudden demise. Much sympathy is extended to Mr. Wright in his trying ordeal.

School meeting passed off quietly. Thomas Melace the retiring one; Earl Burt the newly elected.

Mr. Ross Peters had a number of teams drawing hay on Saturday and will have a number more to-day. Mr. Peters had sixty ton pressed.

Mr. Earl Burt had a bee drawing lumber, from a car unloaded at Yarker, for his new barn to be completed in the early spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Henderson arrived on Christmas morning at Mr. James Davey's, from the west, to spend a few months with friends here.

Mr. Sampson Davey, formerly of this place, now of Hamilton, and granddaughter, are here for a month renewing acquaintances. Mr. Davey, a man of eighty years, is not much failed since we saw him last, a number of years ago.

Mr. Michael Love, of the Gore, is quite low suffering from a shock. His recovery is not expected.

Miss Hester McFarley was found in her home last Friday morning suffering a shock. At time of writing not much change. Her sister, Mrs. Davey, took her to her home and is giving her every attention.

Mr. Oliver Asseltine and family are spending the Yule Tide at Robert Miller's.

Mr. Charles Stover had the misfortune to fall on the ice and dislocate his shoulder Christmas evening. Had Dr. Mabey and Dr. Horace Mabey. Chloroform had to be administered, and from the effects he was very ill for a couple of days. He is now doing as well as could be expected.

Mr. and Mrs. Eldridge Babcock and family are spending two weeks in Hamilton.

Mrs. Jane Birdsall is spending a month at her brother's, Mr. Harvey Mills'.

Miss B. B. Moore is spending the Yule Tide at her home in Chesley.

Miss Bertie Metzler, of Napanee, spent Christmas at her sister's, Mrs. Robert Asseltine's.

London Youth Took Part in Fight With Famous German.

Flight-Lieut. Bert Perry, R. F. C., in a letter to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Perry of London, written on October 8, gives a description of the air battle in which the famous German aviator, Voss, lost his life.

It will be remembered that the Associated Press cable that carried the news of this battle, the English aviator who brought Voss down being designated as "Brown." The information is now given that the man responsible for the feat was Lieut. Rhys-David, and that Lieut. Cronyn of London, Ont., had an important part in it. Lieut. Cronyn is a son of Major Hugh Cronyn and has been in the Royal Flying Corps a couple of years, most of that time flying in India. In France he has been with No. 56 Squadron, which Lieut. Perry says is the crack squadron there. He says:

"It is Capt. Ball's old squadron, and has a record of 200 Huns shot down in five months. Well, the day I was talking to Cronyn, he went out in an afternoon patrol. He had the experience of his young life. He got into the scrap in which Lieut. Rhys-David brought down Lieut. Voss, the crack Hun. Cronyn was attacked by three triplanes, one of which was flown by Voss. Cronyn was under his formation several hundred feet, owing to engine trouble. When he was attacked he kept manoeuvring so as to keep the Huns off his tail, but they got in several shots at him. In the meantime, though, the other machines in his formation dived on the Huns, and two of them went off east. The other kept after Cronyn, but his attention was taken by the others. For several minutes Voss battled with six of them and flew rings around them. They all say he was a wonderful pilot. However, they proved too much for him. Lieut. Rhys-David, who has many Huns to his credit, got in a burst of shots, and the triplane went down. It landed a few feet on our side of the line, and when the body was taken out it was discovered to be Voss. As the Huns had got Gynemer a few days before almost in the same place it sort of evened matters.

"Cronyn started back for the aerodrome, but when he went to turn he found that his aileron controls were shot away, and he could not get his machine out of the bank. He side-slipped for nearly three thousand feet before he managed to get his engine on and pull himself up on an even keel again. Fortunately he was headed for the aerodrome then, and all he had to do was to steer by his rudder straight ahead. He managed to land safely, but when his machine was examined it was found so badly damaged that it was a "write off"—that means it had to be written off as too badly damaged to repair. There were several bursts of shot through his machine, but Cronyn escaped without a scratch."

The ordeal had been hard on the young Londoner's nerves, and at the time Lieut. Perry wrote Lt. Cronyn had been sent to England to recuperate.

VOTES FOR SOLDIERS.

Many Difficulties to Be Overcome in Federal Election.

Major Purney, Overseas Clerk of the Crown in Chancery, is making final arrangements in Ottawa before leaving for England. There he will take in hand the work of provision for taking the votes of all Canadian soldiers overseas in the coming elections. Presiding officers have to be chosen, ballot papers printed, and a score of details arranged in connection with the taking and counting of the overseas vote.

Difficulties in the allocation of the naval and military vote, both in Canada and overseas, have necessitated special provisions. The problem has been how to determine the constituency to which the vote shall go, in the event of the voter not designating any particular candidate by name.

The general rules on which the military vote will be taken are:

(1) If the elector can indicate the name of the electoral district in which he last continuously resided for at least four months of the twelve months preceding his enlistment or appointment, his vote goes to that electoral district.

(2) If he cannot name an electoral district, but can name a place within an electoral district at which he resided for the period mentioned, his vote will be applied to the electoral district in which the place is situated.

(3) If he cannot specify an electoral district or place of residence during the time indicated, but can specify with sufficient clearness an electoral district in which he has resided at any other time, his vote will go to the constituency specified.

(4) If, by reason of non-residence in Canada, or from any other reason, the elector is unable to indicate any particular constituency or place, then he may stipulate to which electoral district he wishes to have his vote applied.

Returned soldiers or other military or naval electors who, if they were on active service, would be entitled to vote at naval or military polls, may vote as civilians in Canada, even though their names are not on the voters' list. Production of the discharge certificate will be necessary in the case of a soldier or sailor, or equivalent documents in the case of an officer.

A further unusual feature will mark the coming elections. Each candidate, to secure military votes, must be "recognized" by the leader of his party. In the case of the Government party the recognition will be by the Prime Minister; in the case of the Opposition, by the leader of the Opposition. In the case of any independent or Labor party, by the recognized leader of such party, "recognition" must be made within five days after nomination day, and the names of "recognized" candidates must be published in The Canada Gazette. The Canada Gazette will thus indicate the precise party standing of every candidate.

Relieved.

"Where did you get these examples of faultily constructed sentences?" asked Dr. Campbell, the great rhetorician, of a student.

"Out of one of your books, doctor."

"What! Out of one of my books?"

CAMP PRISON PLAN.

Attorney-General of South Australia Fancies It.

The Hon. J. H. Vaughan, Attorney-General of South Australia, has for some time been contemplating establishing a forest camp prison in South Australia, with the two-fold object of developing forest land, and at the same time training prisoners to become useful citizens. Some time ago Mr. Vaughan paid a visit to New South Wales, and while investigating various matters connected with the forestry department of the state he had an opportunity of visiting a prison camp at Turuncurry, a place on the coast a little more than 100 miles north of Newcastle. Mr. Vaughan gives an interesting account of the camp at Turuncurry, which he considers a splendid object lesson in the advantages of the forest prison scheme. The camp is situated on what amounts to waste lands, on which thirty prisoners are engaged in clearing operations and in planting trees. During the four years the prison camp has been in existence there have been no attempts on the part of the men to escape, nor have any of them been brought before the visiting justices for breaches of discipline. Since the camp started, Mr. Vaughan said, 147 men have passed through it, and of this number only three have been recommitted since their release.

The prison camp method of treating a certain class of criminals has impressed Mr. Vaughan so favorably that he now intends to institute a similar establishment in South Australia, so that the reformation of criminal tendencies may be combined with the development of land which would otherwise remain unproductive.

Mr. Vaughan gives a pleasant account of the prisoners at Turuncurry playing cricket on a Saturday afternoon and on the beach in the morning enjoying surf bathing, without any attempt to escape.

Mr. Vaughan also visited the site of the New South Wales forestry school at Narrara, which he believes is destined to become the centre of Australian forestry education in the future. His trip confirmed his conviction that a forward policy on afforestation is of first importance, and that no time should be lost in making more full use of the Australian market for local-grown timber.

BIRTHPLACE OF TELEPHONE.

Inventor Says That It Was Brantford, Not Boston.

Forty-odd years ago in a big farmhouse on Tugela Heights, near Brantford, a tall, earnest young Scotchman labored upon an idea. The neighbors considered him a clever sort of chap, but visionary and impractical. They were willing to concede that he might invent an electric motor—another of his ideas—but to suggest that the human voice could be carried over a wire—well, it was straining credulity a bit. But Alexander Graham Bell did not allow scepticism to deter him, and within a comparatively short time the telephone—not the modern product of science, but its primitive progenitor—came into existence. Brantford became the birthplace of the greatest invention of the age, and on October 24th the people of the city turned out en masse to honor the inventor. The magnificent memorial of bronze and marble erected in the centre of the city to commemorate the achievement of Dr. Bell was unveiled that day by his Excellency the Governor-General. ## ORIGIN OF ESKIMOS.

Traced Musically by Christian Led Explorer.

Primitive music hitherto has been little regarded from the standpoint of racial history. Such facts as have been gathered about tribal rhythms and melodies have been much exploited as material for the composition of exotic-sounding pieces for modern concert hall, but they have been little applied to the comparative study of lost or disappearing civilizations. If some traveler to-day covers a folk tune in Abyssinia, inevitably some composer tomorrow will write an "Abyssinian" in mezzo for full orchestra, with a number of new instruments added. An antiquarian goes into the country of Peru and brings out a strange melody from the mountaineers, a musician is sure to use it at once as the theme of an aria for an Inca opera.

Breaking away from the idea that the present use of a folk tune is what counts for most, Christian Leden, the Arctic explorer, has investigated Eskimo music in Greenland with the purpose of learning past significance.

Starting with the idea that origins of a race can be studied well through music as through song alone, he has taken phonograph records of Eskimo singing as he heard it under both domestic ceremonial conditions. The way a people expresses itself in music does not change so much, according to him, as does its way of expressing itself through other forms of culture. The Eskimos of the present time he has noted his theories to it viewers, have the same manner of vocal delivery, the same way of putting a stress on a tone and the same method for constructing a melody that their ancestors had centuries ago.

Going on the theory that races have permanent traits of rhythm and tune, Mr. Leden compared his records of Eskimo singing with his own and of travelers' records of American Indian singing; and he has come to the conclusion that the Eskimo tribe, Greenland and the Indian tribe both North and South America, have a common ancestry. In fact, he believes that he has found a strong argument showing the Eskimos to be descendants of American Indians who driven northward perhaps thousands of years ago and who have since remained isolated there.

"In the part 'Sentences to Be Corrected.'"
"O-h-h-h! A-h-h-h! Yes, yes," said the relieved doctor.

Alexander Graham Bell and within a comparatively short time the telephone—not the modern product of science, but its primitive progenitor—came into existence. Brantford became the birthplace of the greatest invention of the age, and on October 24th the people of the city turned out en masse to honor the inventor. The magnificent memorial of bronze and marble erected in the centre of the city to commemorate the achievement of Dr. Bell was unveiled that day by his Excellency the Governor-General. A matter of interest to the whole Dominion, in fact to all countries where the name of Dr. Bell is linked with the telephone, the unveiling of the memorial was an event of the first importance in Brantford, and neither cold nor rain could spoil it. The weather could not have been worse, but several thousand people stood in the pouring rain for half an hour waiting for the ceremony.

The memorial stands upon an elevation in a small square in the heart of the city. In the centre in a marble setting is a great bronze bas-relief symbolizing the transmission of sound through space, while mounted upon columns on either side are bronze figures representing humanity in touch. The conception of Walter Allward, the sculptor, is strikingly original, and its execution a remarkable piece of work.

The memorial as it stands to-day is the result of many years of unremitting labor upon the part of a body of public-spirited Brantford citizens. It was in 1904 that W. F. Cockshutt, M.P., then president of the Board of Trade, initiated the movement to have the discovery of the telephone in the "Telephone City" commemorated in fitting manner. As a result the Bell Telephone Memorial Association was formed and went energetically at the task of raising money with the joint object of erecting a memorial and purchasing the old Bell Homestead. The Dominion Government, the Provincial Governments of Ontario and Quebec, several cities and private citizens all over the country contributed. The commission was given to Mr. Allward several years ago, but the completion of the memorial was delayed by difficulty in getting certain material owing to the war.

Fixed, but a Fixture.

"Do you think you can fix this car?" inquired the luckless motorist.

"I think so," replied the village blacksmith, who was something of a wag, as he moved around in the shade of the spreading chestnut tree. "When I get through with it if it is not fixed in one way it will be in another."

And he was right.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

In fact, he holds that he has found a strong argument showing the Eskimos to be descendants of American Indians who were driven northward perhaps thousand of years ago and who have since remained isolated there.

One of the peculiarities which this explorer, talking informally with journalists, has mentioned as common to Eskimo and American Indian singing is a sliding, or glissando, accent of important phrases. There are other details which he has submitted to ethnologists. He has yet to make a complete popular presentation of his researches.

Canada's Fixed Determination.

We in Canada have been at war for over three years and we are weary. The strain has been great; the sacrifices have been terrible. We have given in blood and human suffering and the anguish of bereavement; we have given in gold and to effort. We need rest, and we want rest, but, if I know the spirit of Canada, we will not take rest until the war is ended and victory achieved.

Up to now we have done well. We have enlisted about 400,000 men equal in proportion to 5,000,000 from the United States. If in striding the proportion we should omit the French-Canadian population and the French-Canadian enlistments, it would be equal to 7,000,000 men from the United States. We have raised about a billion of dollars, which, on the basis of the wealth of the two nations, would be equivalent to some forty billion from the United States. We have produced huge quantities of munitions. We have kept up the production of our farms and our factories. But if we are to continue the full performance of our duty, it must from now on be under government direction and government compulsion.

We have said again and again that we were in this war to the last man and the last dollar. We have said this clearly and flatly; we have not qualified it by saying to the last voluntary man, to the last willing dollar. There are timid men at timid dollars; if we are to use the we must take them; it is not enough to invite them and say that they will be welcome.—Atlantic Monthly.

Newfoundland's "Bit."

Newfoundland, though her population does not exceed that of a populous English industrial city, has sent 10,000 men to fight the battles of the British Empire in this war. It is a magnificent record, and exactly what one would have expected from a country which sent its fighting ships to help in the destruction of the Great Armada. It was in 15 that Sir Humphrey Gilbert took possession of the island in the name of his "most gracious Lady, Queen Elizabeth"; it was only five years later that La Felicissima Arma left Corunna for English waters, that Newfoundland had an early opportunity of establishing a tradition for gallantry which Newfoundlanders are so splendidly vindicating in the present war. The "Antient a Loyale Colony" of Newfoundland celebrating the four hundred and twentieth anniversary of her discovery, an occasion which is seized by the rest of the Empire to wish her Godspeed.

WHEN WAR WILL STOP

SUCCESSFUL PROPHET MAKES SECOND PREDICTION.

Man Who Foretold That the United States Would Enter Struggle in Spring of 1917 Now States That Peace Should Come About September of Next Year at the Very Latest.

In the late summer of 1916 I predicted April 1st, 1917, as the probable date of America's entrance into the European war, at the same time submitting in detail my reasons for this prognostication. The approximate correctness of that prediction leads me to hazard another prophecy, this time on the war's duration, a question paramount in the minds of all men to-day, writes George H. Borst in the Philadelphia Ledger.

Out of the amazing mass of conflicting reports and rumors one fact at least appears to me so clear and convincing that its meaning cannot be mistaken. The reversion of Germany to ruthless submarine warfare was a frank admission that the Imperial Government no longer believed it possible to win the war by universally recognized methods of warfare. It seems clear that the consequences of this policy must have been carefully weighed; that among its certain results could be counted the early entrance into the war of many neutrals, foremost of which would most certainly be the United States; that, of the remaining neutrals, almost all would become potential enemies (a fact which must have caused grave apprehension in any consideration of Germany's commercial future), and, lastly, that the Empire by such action would necessarily brand itself as an outlaw nation in the eyes of all humanity.

Only desperation could account for Germany's decision, for in the words of Romain Rolland, "What is the value of life when you have saved it at the price of all that is worth living for?" In the War of 1870 all records show that Prussia observed scrupulously the accepted rules of warfare; but then Prussia was an easy victor. To-day, however, she finds herself in the position of the cornered criminal, ready to grasp at any straw which may promise victory; scratching, biting, kicking, but willing to sacrifice even honor to attain her goal.

Such, it seems, is the interpretation we must place on submarine warfare; and upon the success or failure of this warfare depends in large degree Germany's future as a military power. Lacking submarine success (and unless Germany is able to stave the English people into submission and to secure possession of the British fleet complete success is impossible), defeat is inevitable. In a war of attrition Germany must lose. Accepting then the view that submarine warfare was adopted as a last hope, he must be a confirmed pessimist who sees a chance of ultimate success for the submarine. With the keenest minds and the greatest inventive genius of the world concentrated on the solution of this problem, we may rest assured that some means will be found to combat this evil. It is hardly likely, however, that the full realization of the U-boats' failure will be admitted by the German people before the summer of 1918.

Further reasons also tend to substantiate these opinions. There is the growing discontent in Austria-Hungary, magnified a thousandfold by Russia's declaration of "no annexations and no indemnities." The Slav peril, that argument used so ruthlessly by the Prussians to terrorize and unify the Germanic peoples for the last forty years, has virtually disappeared. Therefore if the Russian armies continue to fall back, fear (the great underlying cause of so many wars) from that quarter will be lessened and a strong moral reason for continuing a losing fight removed. If on the other hand, Russia stays in the fight (and I believe by the spring of 1918 Russia will develop formidable military power), her strength alone may prove a decisive factor to the Allies.

Added to these reasons we find American troops appearing in constantly increasing numbers on European battlefields; we read from every quarter of the diminishing food supply in Germany, of the growing boldness of the Reichstag, of the Polish troops' refusal in Germany and Hungary to fight their comrades and relatives in Russia. We see the strangulation hold of the Allies taking effect on every hand; Italy gradually driving a wedge between two Austrian armies; France recovering ground at Verdun, and England hammering the heart out of the German troops in Flanders, and all the time counter-attacks becoming feebler and more infrequent.

To-day these facts may be only apparent to the German people; their hopes may still be pinned to the submarine or to a separate peace with Russia. They will face another winter before realizing the hopelessness of their task, but with spring will come an awakening. Defeat, hunger, and fatigue will force the issue. By summer definite overtures of peace may reasonably be looked for, and by late summer or early fall (I have set September as a likely date) a cessation in fighting will probably ensue and permanent peace will be ushered in about the end of the year. Does this prediction seem rash? Time alone will prove its worth, but the handwriting on the wall seems clear and unmistakable and to me spells one more year of war.

He Was Equal to It.

A student who could not sound the letter "r" was given the following sentence to read:

"Robert gave Richard a rap in the ribs for roasting the rabbit so rare."

He studied it in silence a minute, then glibly rendered it as follows:

"Bobby gave Dicky a thump in the side for cooking the bunny so little."—Albany Knickerbocker-Press.

Portugal's Big Diamond.

It is claimed for the Braganza, which formed part of the Portuguese crown jewels, that it is the biggest diamond in the world, weighing 1,860 carats. Some doubt exists, however, as to whether it is a real diamond, as no official testing can be authenticated. It was found in Brazil in 1741.—London Telegraph.

THE FLYING SQUIRRELS.

How They Are Able to Sail Through the Air Like a Parachute.

Of all the tenants of the woods the flying squirrel is perhaps the most seldom seen, yet this is not due to any scarcity of the little animal, which, in fact, is among the most numerous of the squirrel family, but to its habit of moving almost entirely at night. Should you doubt this last statement, enter some patch of forest convenient to your home and strike solidly upon the trunks of such trees as appear to be dead and have one or more holes in the trunk; in about one time out of five your efforts will be rewarded by the appearance in the opening, as if by magic, of the bright eyes and upstanding ears of a flying squirrel.

These squirrels do not, of course, fly, but their legs are connected at the "wrists" with a light membrane which serves as a sort of parachute, although it has some of the possibilities of an aeroplane. Before making a flight the squirrel will run rapidly up the trunk of a tree and, when he has attained a sufficient height, spring boldly off into space.

With legs spread wide apart, so as to present the greatest possible surface to the air, and his extraordinarily wide and fluffy tail serving as a rudder, the squirrel sails swiftly through the air, often for 100 feet or even more, until he reaches the trunk of another tree, up which he runs in order to attain height for a new flight.

By this method flying squirrels are able rapidly to cover long distances with little exertion, for often, when nearing the end of a long sail, they will point themselves upward and by means of their "rudders" and the impetus given will rise almost to the height at which they started—just as a boy riding down hill may be carried over a lesser upgrade at the foot.—A. E. Swayer in St. Nicholas.

Editorial Troubles.

The printer's foreman entered the editorial sanctum and was surprised to find the editor's face badly bruised.

"Had a fall downstairs?" asked the foreman.

"No. It's our account of the Jones-Smith wedding, which ought to read: 'Miss Smith's dimpled, shining face formed a pleasant contrast with Mr. Jones' strong, bold physiognomy.'"

"And this is how it reads: 'Miss Smith's pimpled, skinny face formed a pleasant contrast with Mr. Jones' stony, bald physiognomy.'"

"Send that proofreader to me at once," he continued, throwing one blood stained handkerchief in the wastebasket and searching for a clean one. "There's fight left in me yet."

PROLOGUE.

In "Before Adam" Jack London weaves a fascinating tale of forests primeval, the Fire People, the Tree People, the Cave Folk and other strange creatures of the middleistocene. The hero of the story is a primitive man whose life is one round of peril. Chief among his foes are the Tawny One, Saber Tooth and Red Eye. Then there is the Swift One, who loves and is loved by the man who lived "before Adam."

CHAPTER I.

PICTURES! Pictures! Pictures! Often before I learned did I wonder whence came the multitudes of pictures that thronged my dreams, for they were pictures the like of which I had never seen in real wakeaday life. They tormented my childhood, making of my dreams a procession of nightmares and a little later convincing me that I was different from my kind, a creature unnatural and accursed.

In my days only did I attain any measure of happiness. My nights marked the reign of fear—and such fear! I make bold to state that no man of all the men who walk the earth with me ever suffer fear of like kind and degree. For my fear is the fear of long ago, the fear that was rampant in the younger world and in the youth of the younger world, in short, the fear that reigned supreme in that period known as the middleistocene.

What do I mean? I see explanation is necessary before I can tell you of the substance of my dreams.

What to you the friendship of Lop Ear, the warm lure of the Swift One, namely, that in one's dreams one sees only what he has seen in his waking life or combinations of the things he has seen in his waking life. But all my dreams violated this law. In my dreams I never saw anything of which I had knowledge in my waking life. My dream life and my waking life were lives apart, with not one thing in common save myself. I was the connecting link that somehow lived both lives.

Early in my childhood I learned that nuts came from the grocer, berries from the fruit man, but before ever that knowledge was mine, in my dreams I picked nuts from trees or gathered them and ate them from the ground underneath trees, and in the same way I ate berries from vines and bushes. This was beyond any experience of mine.

I shall never forget the first time I saw blueberries served on the table. I had never seen blueberries before, and yet at the sight of them there leaped up in my mind memories of dreams wherein I had wandered through swampy land eating my fill of them. My mother set before me a dish of the berries. I filled my spoon, but before I raised it to my mouth I knew just how they would taste. Nor was I disappointed. It was the same tang that I had tasted a thousand times in my sleep.

Snakes? Long before I had heard of the existence of snakes I was tormented by them in my sleep. They lurked for me in the forest glades; leaped up, striking, under my feet; squirmed off through the dry grass or across naked patches of rock or pursued me into the treetops, encircling the trunks with their great shining bodies, driving me higher and higher or farther and farther out on swaying and crackling branches, the ground a dizzy distance beneath me. Snakes! With their forked tongues, their beady eyes and glittering scales, their hissing and their rattling—did I not already know them far too well on that day of my first circus when I saw the snake charmer lift them up? They were old friends of mine, enemies rather, that people my nights with fear.

Ah, those endless forests and their horror haunted gloom! For what eternities have I wandered through them, a timid, hunted creature, starting at the least sound, frightened by my own shadow, keyed up, ever alert and vigilant, ready on the instant to dash away in mad flight for my life, for I was the prey of all manner of fierce life that dwelt in the forest, and it was in ecstasies of fear that I fled before the hunting monsters.

When I was five years old I went to my first circus. I came home from it sick, but not from peanuts and pink lemonade. Let me tell you. As we entered the animal tent a hoarse roar shook the air. I tore my hand loose from my father's and dashed wildly back through the entrance, I collided with people, fell down, and all the time I was screaming with terror. My father caught me and soothed me. He pointed to the crowd of people, all careless of the roaring, and cheered me with assurances of safety.

Nevertheless it was in fear and trembling and with much encouragement on his part that I at last approached the lion's cage. Ah, I knew him on the instant—the beast, the terrible one! And on my inner vision flashed the memories of my dreams—the midday sun shining on tall grass, the wild bull grazing quietly, the sudden parting of the grass before the swift rush of the tawny one, his lean to the bull's struck at me as I dodged and leaped away in chattering flight, the wild dogs that hunted me across the open spaces to the timber—these were terrors concrete and actual, happenings and not imaginings, things of the living flesh and of sweat and blood. Ogres and bugaboos and I had been happy bed-fellows compared with these terrors that made their bed with me throughout my childhood and that still bed with me now as I write this, full of years.

I have said that in my dreams I never saw a human being. Of this fact I became aware very early and felt poignantly the lack of my own kind. As a very little child even I had a feeling in the midst of the horror of my dreaming that if I could find but one man, only one human, I should be saved from my dreaming, that I should be surrounded no more by haunting terrors. This thought obsessed me every night of my life for years—if only I could find that one human and be saved!

I must iterate that I had this thought in the midst of my dreaming, and I take it as an evidence of the merging of my two personalities as evidence of a point of contact between the two dissociated parts of me. My dream personality lived in the long ago, before ever man as we know him came to be, and my other and wake-a-day personality projected itself to the extent of the knowledge of man's existence into the substance of my dreams.

Perhaps the psychologists of the book will find fault with my way of using the phrase "dissociation of personality." I know their use of it, yet am compelled to use it in my own way in default of a better phrase. I take shelter behind the inadequacy of the English language. And now to the explanation of my use or misuse of the phrase.

It was not till I was a young man at college that I got any clew to the significance of my dreams and to the cause of them. Up to that time they had been meaningless and without apparent causation. But at college I discovered evolution and psychology and learned the explanation of various strange mental states and experiences. For instance, there was the falling through space dream, the commonest dream experience, one practically known by first hand experience to all men.

This, my professor told me, was a racial memory. It dated back to our remote ancestors who lived in trees. With them, being tree dwellers, the liability of falling was an ever present menace. Many lost their lives that way. All of them experienced terri-pursued by beasts of prey, struck at by deadly snakes. He chattered with his kind in council, and he received rough usage at the hands of the Fire People in the day that he fled before them.

But, I hear you objecting, why is it that these racial memories are not ours as well, seeing that we have a vague other personality that falls through space while we sleep?

And I may answer with another question: Why is a two headed calf? And my own answer to this is that it is a freak. And so I answer you question. I have this other personality and these complete racial memories because I am a freak.

But let me be more explicit. The commonest race memory we have is the falling through space dream. The other personality is very vague. About the only memory it has is that of falling. But many of us have sharper, more distinct other personalities. Many of us have the flying dream, the puny monster dream, the dream of suffocation dreams and the reptile and vermin dreams. In short, while the other personality is vestigial in all of us, in some of us it is almost obliterated, while in others of us it is more pronounced. Some of us have strong and complete race memories than others.

is necessary before I can tell you the substance of my dreams.

What to you the friendship of Lop Ear, the warm lure of the Swift One,

The Swift One.

the lust and the atavism of Red Eye? A screaming incoherence and no more. And a screaming incoherence likewise, the doings of the Fire People and the Tree People and the gibbering councils of the horde, for you know not the peace of the cool caves in the cliffs, the circus of the drinking places at the end of the day. You have never felt the bite of the morning wind in the tree tops, nor is the taste of young bark sweet in your mouth.

It would be better, I dare say, for you to make your approach, as I made mine, through my childhood. As a boy I was very like other boys—in my waking hours. It was in my sleep that I was different. From my earliest recollection my sleep was a period of terror. Rarely were my dreams tintured with happiness. As a rule, they were stuffed with fear, and with a fear so strange and alien that it had no ponderable quality.

For instance, I was a city boy, a city child, rather, to whom the country was an unexplored domain. Yet I never dreamed of cities. Nor did a bouse ever occur in any of my dreams. Nor, for that matter, did any of my human kind ever break through the wall of my sleep. I, who had seen trees only in parks and illustrated books, wandered in my sleep through interminable forests. And, further, these dream trees were not a mere blur on my vision. They were sharp and distinct. I was on terms of practiced intimacy with them. I saw every branch and twig. I saw and knew every different leaf.

Well do I remember the first time in my waking life that I saw an oak tree. As I looked at the leaves and branches and gnarls it came to me with distressing vividness that I had seen that same kind of tree many and countless times in my sleep. So I was not surprised still later on in my life to recognize instantly, the first time I saw them, trees such as the spruce, the yew, the birch and the laurel. I had seen them all before and was seeing them even then every night in my sleep.

This, as you have already discerned, violates the first law of dreaming—

My father came to me and soothed me. He pointed to the crowd of people, all careless of the roaring, and cheered me with assurances of safety.

Nevertheless it was in fear and trembling and with much encouragement on his part that I at last approached the lion's cage. Ah, I knew him on the instant—the beast, the terrible one! And on my inner vision flashed the memories of my dreams—the mid-day sun shining on tall grass, the wild bull grazing quietly, the sudden parting of the grass before the swift rush of the tawny one, his leap to the bull's back, the cracking and the belching and the crunch, crunch of bones, or again, the cool quiet of the water hole the wild horse up to his knees and drinking softly, and then the tawny one—always the tawny one—the leap the screaming and the splashing of the horse and the crunch, crunch of bones, and yet again the somber twilight and the sad silence of the end of day and then the great, full throated roar, sudden, like a trump of doom, and swift upon it the insane shrieking and chattering among the trees, and I, too, am trembling with fear and am one of the many shrieking and chattering among the trees.

At the sight of him, helpless within the bars of his cage, I became enraged. I gritted my teeth at him, danced up and down, screaming an incoherent mockery and making antic faces. He responded, rushing against the bars and roaring back at me his impotent wrath. Ah, he knew me, too, and the sound! I made were the sounds of old time and intelligible to him.

My parents were frightened. "The child is ill," said my mother. "He is hysterical," said my father. I never told them, and they never knew. Already had I developed reticence concerning this quality of mine, this semi-dissociation of personality as I think I am justified in calling it.

I saw the snake charmer, and no more of the circus did I see that night. I was taken home, nervous and overwrought, sick with the invasion of my real life by that other life of my dreams.

I have mentioned my reticence. Only once did I confide the strangeness of it all to another. He was a boy, my chum, and we were eight years old.

From my dreams I reconstructed for him pictures of that vanished world in which I do believe I once lived. I told him of the terrors of that early time, of Lop Ear and the pranks we played, of the gibbering councils and of the Fire People and their squatting places.

He laughed at me and jeered and told me tales of ghosts and of the dead that walk at night. But mostly did he laugh at my feeble fancy. I told him more, and he laughed the harder. I swore in all earnestness that these things were so, and he began to look upon me queerly; also he gave amazing garblings of my tales to our playmates until all began to look upon me queerly.

It was a bitter experience, but I learned my lesson. I was different from my kind. I was abnormal with something they could not understand and the telling of which would cause only misunderstanding. When the stories of ghosts and goblins went around I kept quiet. I smiled grimly to myself. I thought of my nights of fear and knew that mine were the real things—real as life itself, not attenuated vapors and surmised shadows.

For me no terrors resided in the thought of bugaboos and wicked ogres. The fall through leafy branches and the dizzy heights, the snakes that ble falls, saving themselves by clutching branches as they fell toward the ground.

Now, a terrible fall averted in such fashion was productive of shock. Such shock was productive of molecular changes in the cerebral cells. These molecular changes were transmitted to the cerebral cells of progeny—became, in short, racial memories. Thus when you and I, asleep or dozing off to sleep, fall through space and awake to sickening consciousness just before we strike we are merely remembering what happened to our arboreal ancestors and what has been stamped by cerebral changes into the heredity of the race.

There is nothing strange in this any more than there is anything strange in an instinct. An instinct is merely a habit that is stamped into the stuff of our heredity; that is all. It will be noted in passing that in this falling dream, which is so familiar to you and me and all of us, we never strike bottom. To strike bottom would be destruction. Those of our arboreal ancestors who struck bottom died forthwith. True, the shock of their fall was communicated to the cerebral cells, but they died immediately, before they could have progeny. You and I are descended from those that did not strike bottom. That is why you and I in our dreams never strike bottom.

And now we come to dissociation of personality. We never have this sense of falling when we are wide awake. Our wake-a-day personality has no experience of it. Then—and here the argument is irresistible—it must be another and distinct personality that falls when we are asleep and that has had experience of such falling—that has, in short, a memory of past day race experiences, just as our wake-a-day personality has a memory of our wake-a-day experiences.

It was at this stage in my reasoning that I began to see the light. And quickly the light burst upon me with dazzling brightness, illuminating and explaining all that had been weird and uncanny and unnaturally impossible in my dream experiences. In my sleep it was not my wake-a-day personality that took charge of me. It was another and distinct personality, possessing a new and totally different fund of experiences and, to the point of my dreaming, possessing memories of those totally different experiences.

What was this personality? When had it itself lived a wake-a-day life on this planet in order to collect this fund of strange experiences? These were questions that my dreams themselves answered. He lived in the long ago, when the world was young, in that period that we call the middleleocene. He fell from the trees, but did not strike bottom. He gibbered with fear at the roaring of the lions. He was other personality is very vague. About the only memory it has is that of falling. But many of us have sharper, more distinct other personalities. Many of us have the flying dream, the purring monster dream, the dreams, suffocation dreams and the reptile and vermin dreams. In short, while this other personality is vestigial in all of us, in some of us it is almost obliterated, while in others of us it is more pronounced. Some of us have stronger and completer race memories than others.

It is all a question of varying degree of possession of the other personality. In myself the degree of possession is enormous. My other personality is almost equal in power with my own personality. And in this matter I am, as I said, a freak—a freak of heredity.

I do not believe that it is the possession of this other personality—but not so strong a one as mine—that has in some few others given rise to belief in personal reincarnation experiences. It is very plausible to such people, a most convincing hypothesis. When they have visions of scenes they have never seen in the flesh, memories of acts and events dating back in time the simplest explanation is that they have lived before.

But they make the mistake of ignoring their own duality. They do not recognize their other personality. They think it is their own personality, that they have only one personality, and from such a premise they can conclude only that they have lived previous lives.

But they are wrong. It is not reincarnation. I have visions of myself roaming through the forests of the younger world, and yet it is not myself that I see, but one that is only remotely a part of me, as my father and my grandfather are parts of me less remote. This other self of mine is an ancestor, a progenitor of my progenitors in the early line of my race, him self the progeny of a line that long before his time developed fingers and toes and climbed up into the trees.

I must again at the risk of boring repeat that I am in this one thing to be considered a freak. Not alone do I possess racial memory to an enormous extent, but I possess the memories of one particular and far removed progenitor. And yet, while this is most unusual, there is nothing over remarkable about it.

Follow my reasoning. An instinct is a racial memory. Very good. Then you and I and all of us receive these memories from our fathers and mothers, as they received them from their fathers and mothers. Therefore there must be a medium whereby these memories are transmitted from generation to generation. This medium I what Weismann terms the "germ plasma." It carries the memories of the whole evolution of the race. These memories are dim and confused, many of them are lost. But some strains of germplasm carry an excessive freightage of memories—are, to be scientific, more atavistic than other strains, and such a strain is mine. I am a freak of heredity, an atavist! nightmare—call me what you will—but here I am, real and here, eating three hearty meals a day, and what are you going to do about it?

CHAPTER II.

AND now, before I take up my tale, I want to anticipate the doubting Thomases of psychology, who are prone to scoff and who would otherwise surely say that the coherence of my dreams is due to overstudy and the subconscious projection of my knowledge of evolution into my dreams. In the first place, I have never been a zealous student. I graduated last of my class. I cared more for athletics and—there is no reason I should not confess it—more for billiards.

Further, I had no knowledge of evolution until I was at college, whereas in my childhood and youth I had already lived in my dreams all the details of that other, long ago life. I will say, however, that these details were mixed and incoherent until I came to know the science of evolution. Evolution was the key. It gave the explanation, gave sanity to the pranks of this atavistic brain of mine that, modern and normal, harked back to a past so remote as to be contemporaneous with the raw beginnings of mankind.

For in this past I know of, man, as we today know him, did not exist. It was in the period of his becoming that I must have lived and had my being.

The commonest dream of my early childhood was something like this: It seemed that I was very small and that I lay curled up in a sort of nest of twigs and boughs. Sometimes I was lying on my back.

In this position it seemed that I spent many hours, watching the play of sunlight on the foliage overhead and the stirring of the leaves by the wind. Often the nest itself moved back and forth when the wind was strong.

But always, while so lying in the nest, I was mastered by a feeling as of tremendous space beneath me. I never saw it, I never peered over the edge of the nest to see, but I knew and feared that space that lurked just beneath me and that ever threatened me like a maw of some all devouring monster.

This dream, in which I was quiescent and which was more like a condition than an experience of action, I dreamed very often in my early childhood. But suddenly there would rush into the very midst of it strange forms and ferocious happenings, the thunder and crashing of storm or unfamiliar landscapes such as in my wake-a-day life I had never seen. The result was confusion and nightmare. I could comprehend nothing of it. There was no logic of sequence.

You see, I did not dream consecutively. One moment I was a wee babe of the younger world lying in my tree nest; the next moment I was a grown man of the younger world locked in combat with the hideous Red Eye, and the next moment I was creeping carefully down to the water hole in the heat of the day. Events years apart in their occurrence in the younger world occurred with me within the space of several minutes or seconds.

It was all a jumble, but this jumble I shall not inflict upon you. It was not until I was a young man and had dreamed many thousand times that everything straightened out and became clear and plain. Then it was that I got the clew of time and was able to piece together events and actions in their proper order. Thus was I able to reconstruct the vanished younger world as it was at the time I lived in it—or at the time my other self lived in it. The distinction does not matter, for I, too, the modern man, have gone back and lived that early life in the comuttering sharp and continuous cries that sounded like "kh-ah, kh-ah!" So sudden and formidable was her appearance that the bear involuntarily bunched himself together on the defensive and bristled as she swerved toward him. Then she swerved toward me. She had quite taken the breath out of him. I knew just what to do in that moment of time she had gained. I leaped to meet her, catching her about the waist and holding on hand and foot—yes, by my feet.

As I say, I leaped to meet her, and on the instant she leaped straight up into the air, catching an overhanging branch with her hands. The next instant, with clashing tusks, the bear dove past underneath. He had recovered from his surprise and sprung forward, emitting a squeal that was al-made to clutch and gripe and rend and destroy.

His hips were thin, and the legs lean and hairy, were crooked and stringy muscled. In fact, my father's legs were more like arms. They were twisted and gnarly and with scarcely the semblance of the full meaty calf such as graces your leg and mine. I remember he could not walk on the flat of his foot. This was because it was a prehensile foot, more like a hand than a foot. The great toe, instead of being in line with the other toes, opposed them, like a thumb, and its opposition to the other toes was what enabled him to get a grip with his foot. This was why he could not walk on the flat of his foot.

But his appearance was no more unusual than the manner of his coming there to my mother and me as we perched above the angry wild pigs. He came through the trees, leaping from limb to limb and from tree to tree, and he came swiftly. I can see him now, in my wake-a-day life, as I write this, swinging along through the trees, a four handed, hairy creature howling with rage, pausing now and again to beat his chest with his clenched fist, leaping ten and fifteen foot gaps, catching a branch with one hand and swinging on across another gap to catch with his other hand and go on, never hesitating, never at a loss as to how to proceed on his arboreal way.

sonality. And in this matter I am, as aid, a freak—a freak of heredity.

do not believe that it is the pos-sion of this other personality—but t so strong a one as mine—that has some few others given rise to belief personal reincarnation experiences.
is very plausible to such people, a st convincing hypothesis. When y have visions of scenes they have er seen in the flesh, memories of s and events dating back in time, e simplest explanation is that they e lived before.

but they make the mistake of ignorg their own duality. They do not ognize their other personality. They nk it is their own personality, that y have only one personality, and m such a premise they can conclude
y that they have lived previous lives, but they are wrong. It is not rein-arnation. I have visions of myself ming through the forests of the nger world, and yet it is not myself
I see, but one that is only remote a part of me, as my father and my ndfather are parts of me less re-te. This other self of mine is an cestor, a progenitor of my progeny
s in the early line of my race, him-f the progeny of a line that long bee his time developed fingers and s and climbed up into the trees.
must again at the risk of boring re-it that I am in this one thing to be sidered a freak. Not alone do I sess racial memory to an enormous ent, but I possess the memories of e particular and far removed pro-itor. And yet, while this is most usual, there is nothing over remark-e about it.

ollow my reasoning. An instinct is racial memory. Very good. Then I and I and all of us receive these ories from our fathers and moths, as they received them from their thers and mothers. Therefore there st be a medium whereby these ories are transmitted from genera-n to generation. This medium is at Weismann terms the "germism." It carries the memories of the ole evolution of the race. These ories are dim and confused, and ny of them are lost. But some ains of germplasm carry an excese freightage of memories—are, to be entific, more atavistic than other ains, and such a strain is mine. I a freak of heredity, an atavistic nightmare—call me what you will—but e I am, real and alive, eating three arty meals a day, and what are you g to do about it?

several minutes or seconds.
It was all a jumble, but this jumble
I shall not inflict upon you. It was not until I was a young man and had dreamed many thousand times that everything straightened out and became clear and plain. Then it was that I got the clew of time and was able to piece together events and actions in their proper order. Thus was I able to reconstruct the vanished younger world as it was at the time I lived in it—or at the time my other self lived in it.
The distinction does not matter, for I,
too, the modern man, have gone back
and lived that early life in the company of my other self.

For your convenience, since this is to be no sociological screed, I shall frame together the different events into a comprehensive story. For there is a certain thread of continuity and happening that runs through all the dreams. There is my friendship with Lop Ear, for instance. Also there are the enmity of Red Eye and the love of the Swift One. Taking it all in all, a fairly coherent and interesting story, I am sure you will agree.

I do not remember much of my mother. Possibly the earliest recollection I have of her—and certainly the sharpest—is the following: It seemed I was lying on the ground. I was somewhat older than during the next days, but still helpless. I rolled about in the dry leaves, playing with them and making crooning, rasping noises in my throat.

Suddenly I heard a sound. I sat upright and listened. I made no movement. The little noises died down in my throat, and I sat as one petrified.
The sound drew closer. It was like the grunt of a pig. Then I began to hear the sound caused by the moving of a body through the brush. Next I saw the ferns agitated by the passage of the body. Then the ferns parted, and I saw gleaming eyes, a long snout
and white tusks.

It was a wild boar. He peered at me curiously. He grunted once or twice and shifted his weight from one foreleg to the other, at the same time moving his head from side to side and swaying the ferns. Still I sat as one petrified, my eyes unblinking as I stared at him, fear eating at my heart.

It seemed that this movelessness and silence on my part was what was expected of me. I was not to cry out in the face of fear. It was a dictate of instinct. And so I sat there and waited for I knew not what. The boar thrust the ferns aside and stepped into the open. The curiosity went out of his eyes and they gleaned cruelly. He tossed his head at me threateningly and advanced a step. This he did again and yet again.

Then I screamed . . . or shrieked—I cannot describe it, but it was a shrill and terrible cry. And it seems that it, too, at this stage of the proceedings was the thing expected of me. From not far away came an answering cry. My sounds seemed momentarily to disconcert the boar, and while he halted and shifted his weight with indecision an apparition burst upon us.

She was like a large orang outang, my mother, or like a chimpanzee, and yet, in sharp and definite ways, quite different. She was heavier of build than they and had less hair. Her arms were not so long and her legs were stouter. She wore no clothes—only her natural hair. And I can tell you she was a fury when she was excited.

And like a fury she dashed upon the scene. She was gritting her teeth, making frightful grimaces, snarling,

With Clashing Tusks the Boar Drove Past Underneath.

most a trumpeting. At any rate it was a call, for it was followed by the rushing of bodies through the ferns and brush from all directions.

From every side wild hogs dashed into the open space—a score of them.
But my mother swung over the top of a thick limb a dozen feet from the ground, and, still holding on to her, we perched there in safety. She was very excited. She chattered and screamed and scolded down at the bristling, tooth gnashing circle that had gathered beneath. I, too, trembling, peered down at the angry beasts and did my best to imitate my mother's cries.

From the distance came similar cries, only pitched deeper, into a sort of roaring bass. These grew momentarily louder, and soon I saw him approaching, my father—at least by all the evidence of the times I am driven to conclude that he was my father.

He was not an extremely prepossessing father, as fathers go. He seemed half man and half ape, and yet not ape and not yet man. I fail to describe him. There is nothing like him today on the earth, under the earth, nor in the earth. He was a large man in his day, and he must have weighed all of a hundred and thirty pounds. His face was broad and flat, and the eyebrows overhung the eyes. The eyes themselves were small, deep set and close together.

The forehead slanted back from the eyes, and the hair began right at the eyes and ran up over the head. The head itself was preposterously small and was supported on an equally preposterous thick, short neck.

There was an elemental economy about his body—as was there about all our bodies. The chest was deep, it is true, cavernously deep; but there were no full swelling muscles, no wide spreading shoulders, no clean limbed straightness, no generous symmetry of outline. It represented strength, that body of my father's, strength without beauty; ferocious, primordial strength,

there to my mother and me as we perched above the angry wild pigs. He came through the trees, leaving from limb to limb and from tree to tree, and he came swiftly. I can see him now, in my wake-a-day life, as I write this,

swinging along through the trees, a four handed, hairy creature howling with rage, pausing now and again to beat his chest with his clenched fist, leaping ten and fifteen foot gaps, catching a branch with one hand and swinging on across another gap to catch with his other hand and go on, never hesitating, never at a loss as to how to proceed on his arboreal way.

And as I watched him I felt in my own being, in my very muscles themselves, the surge and thrill of desire to go leaping from bough to bough, and I felt also the guarantee of the latent power in that being and in those muscles of mine. And why not? Little boys watch their fathers swing axes and fell trees and feel in themselves that some day they, too, will swing axes and fell trees. And so with me. The life that was in me was constituted to do what my father did,
and it whispered to me secretly and ambitiously of aerial paths and forest figments.

At last my father joined us. He was extremely angry. I remember the out-thrust of his protruding underlip as he glared down at the wild pigs. He snarled something like a dog, and I remember that his eyeteeth were large,
like fangs, and that they impressed me tremendously.

TWO OLD PROBLEMS.

The Moving Train and the Bullet Fired From a Rifle.

A correspondent sends these two questions to the Scientific American:

"First.—If a train was running at a speed of sixty miles an hour and a man is sitting on the back end of this train with a gun that would shoot at the rate of sixty miles an hour and he shoots from the back end of this train in opposite direction, what effect would this condition have on the bullet?

"Second.—If the man with the gun was on the front end of this train and was to shoot back at a man on the back end of train and train to be going sixty miles per hour and the gun would shoot at the rate of sixty miles an hour, what would be the result?"

To which the editor replies:

"First.—In the case you propose the bullet after it left the gun would still move forward with the speed of the train and backward with the speed given it by the powder. Since these two speeds are equal and opposite in direction the bullet would drop to the ground directly under the point where it left the gun.

"Second.—In this case the man at whom the bullet was shot would be killed if the aim was good. This may be made clear perhaps by asking if you could not throw a ball on a train to a man to the rear of the place where you were standing? Could you not toss a biscuit to a person in the next seat in a car either toward the front or rear? If you could toss a biscuit you could fire a bullet in either direction and with the usual result when a bullet is fired. This matter seems very simple to us. We do not know why it causes so much discussion."

UTILIZE ALL WASTES

Not Advisable to Make Hog Meat Out of Raw Materials.

Grain May Be Saved for Direct Use as Food for Man and for Topping Off Beef—Dairy By-Products Are Valuable.

It is a good plan to insist that so far as possible hog meat shall be produced mainly with food wastes as the raw materials. Grain may thus be saved for direct use as food for man and for feeding or topping off beef cattle which cannot be raised on waste.

Wastes on farms and in the towns make good hog feed; by-products from canneries, bakeries, fisheries, packing plants and the like can be utilized as hog feed and to better economic advantage than in any other way. Dairy wastes are particularly valuable as hog feed and promote rapid growth with a good money return for every gallon fed.

The farm orchard furnishes large quantities of windfallen or defective fruit, which is relished by hogs, and is beneficial if fed in small quantities frequently, and not all at one feed. Garden wastes, tops of vegetables, culls of all sorts, even weeds are readily eaten, and such as may not be eaten will be worked over, going into the bedding and adding to the manure.

Kitchen wastes are an excellent source of food for hogs, but should be kept at a minimum, because practically all food prepared for man's use should be eaten by him.

POTATOES LIKE HEN MANURE

Droppings Collected From Poultry Houses Applied to Small Patch Gave Large Returns.

Our experience with hen manure on potatoes last summer may be of interest to some, says F. W. Briggs, in Farm Poultry. We took our potato patch, just one-third of an acre, and covered it broadcast with a moderate coating of hen manure that had been collected from the dropping boards.

This was all the dressing the piece had. We planted our potatoes, and the following week hoed them once with a horse hoe. This is all the time or labor that was expended on the crop, except the labor of digging and picking. The crop from this one-third acre was just 150 bushels of extra large smooth potatoes, and ten bushels of small ones. The potatoes were of such excellent quality that they brought five cents per bushel more from the Boston buyer than any other potatoes in this locality. The piece used was of easy access from the free range occupied by the pullets during the summer. These pullets assisted materially in the crop, as they kept the piece well "cultivated" by their scratching, and kept away or ate up all the potato bugs; we did not use an ounce of paris green or bordeaux mixture.

HORSE POWER TO PULL POSTS

Team and Wagon, Log Chain and Stout Plank Are Among Things Needed for the Purpose.

Digging up old fence posts is a hard job. The accompanying drawing shows the easiest and quickest way of pulling posts that have been seen. A team and wagon, a ten-foot log chain and a stout plank with a notch in the upper end or a forked stick about four feet long are the things needed.

Drive the team and wagon up parallel to the fence and about a foot away from it, and five feet ahead of the post to be pulled. Loop one end of the chain around the middle of the axle. Pass the other end over the fork in the stick and hook around the base of the post. The only precaution is to see that the forked stick or plank is not set too slanting or it will slip out instead of lifting the post. Drive ahead and out comes the post. There is no backing up or turning around nor any tools to move. As fast as the posts are pulled they are thrown into the wagon. If many posts are to be pulled it will save time to wire the chain to the crotch of the prop so that the team will drag it from one location to the next.

WHEATLESS RATION FOR HEN

Has Been Found to Be Satisfactory for Production of Eggs—Formula is Given.

A wheatless ration for egg production has been found to compare favorably with rations containing wheat. In the wheatless ration the scratch mixture was two pounds of cracked corn and one pound of oats, while the dry mash was three pounds of cornmeal and one pound of beef scrap. About equal parts of the scratch mixture and the dry mash were fed.

COWS NOT MILKED PROPERLY

Not Much Gained by Feeding Unless Farmer Gets All the Milk and Butterfat Feed Makes.

There is not much to be gained by feeding a cow unless you are determined to get all the milk and butterfat the feed makes. You cannot get all the milk and butterfat the feed makes unless you milk the cow right. A large percentage of cows are not milked right, so a large loss of milk and a larger loss of butterfat result. It is as important that cows be well milked as it is that they be well fed.

BUILDING UP A DAIRY HERD

Use of Purebred Bull Is Cheapest Way—Too Much Stress Cannot Be Laid to Ancestry.

The use of a purebred bull is the cheapest way of building up a herd. In selecting a bull too much stress cannot be laid to his ancestry. The greater the number of good producers in his pedigree, the better the chances for stamping desirable dairy characteristics upon his offspring.

DAIRY FACTS

FEEDING THE DAIRY CALVES

First Aim is to Cut Down Whole-Milk Period—Results of Tests at North Dakota Station.

In feeding the dairy calf, the aim is to cut down the period of whole-milk feeding. At the North Dakota experiment station, two lots of four calves each were fed as follows: Whole milk first three weeks, both lots. From then on lot A was fed one-half whole milk and one-half skim milk till six months old. Lot B, after three weeks old, fed skim milk with flaxseed; just enough flax was added to supply as much fat as was given the calves in lot A in their whole milk. Each calf was given two gallons of milk a day.

The whole-milk calves made the best gains the first three months, but during the next three months the skim-milk calves nearly caught up, the four lacking but 15 pounds of weighing as much as the whole-milk calves. Several expert cattlemen who examined the two lots pronounced the calves in lot B in as thrifty a condition as those in lot A. The saving in using skim milk and flax in place of the whole milk amounted to $19 per calf for the six-month period. The grain and hay cost the same for both lots.

SILO FACTS

Consider the silo:

It means larger profits from the cowshed.

It means less labor in feeding.

It means better health for the herd.

It means a larger milk flow from the dairy cow.

It means more beef at reduced cost.

It means less grain in the stock ration and more in the soldier's ration.

WORK HORSES AND SAVE MEN

Expert of Missouri College of Agriculture Outlines Plan to Solve Labor Problem.

Labor is the limiting factor in crop production this year. Horses are relatively plentiful in comparison. O. R. Johnson of the department of farm management of the Missouri College of Agriculture suggests that farmers lay aside one-man and two-horse tools and use those that require more horses so that more work per man can be done. One man with three horses to a 16-inch breaking plow will turn over three acres or less in a day. The same man with a gang plow consisting of two 12-inch bottoms will average 4½ acres a day and will use one more horse. This means that by increasing the horse stock one-third, one man can increase his efficiency in breaking ground nearly 75 per cent.

If a merchant or a manufacturer is willing to spend good money for advertising, to ask you to try his store or his product, it stands to reason that he must have something worth offering. Otherwise you would not go back, or you would not again purchase the product, and the first sale would be the last. In that case advertising would NOT pay. It only pays when it brings continuous patronage, and to do that there must be real value given. That is the reason advertised stores or products are almost invariably good. It will pay you to patronize the advertisers.

This means that by increasing the horse stock one-third, one man can increase his efficiency in breaking ground nearly 75 per cent.

Investigations have actually shown that a man on a riding implement will do more work in a day than the same man and the same team with implements that require him to walk. The use of bigger tools and thorough preparation of seed beds will also cut down the time required for cultivation of the corn crop. Cultivation is the operation which limits the amount of corn one man can grow. If a good seedbed is prepared, some time can be saved in cultivating the crop, and consequently more acres can be grown.

HANDY SAFETY SPRING SEAT

Convenience Protects Driver From Severe Jolting and Eliminates Danger of Falling.

For cultivators and certain other farm implements, a shock-absorbing seat has been devised to protect a driver from severe jolting and to eliminate the danger of his being thrown from a machine. The seat post is pivoted to the tongue and held in position by three coil springs. One of these is stretched between the tongue and the upper part of the seat post, while the other two extend diagonally to either side, connecting the seat and the frame. This arrangement prevents undue movement in any direction and supports the seat without its having a rigid connection.—Popular Mechanics.

PAINT FOR FARM BUILDINGS

Avoid Cheap Imitations and Use That Made of Linseed Oil and Ground Lead—Color Is Important.

Do not use any cheap imitations of paint. The best paint is made of linseed oil and ground lead. Some think that the paint is improved by a small addition of zinc. An unpainted building will not withstand the elements one-tenth so long as a building that is painted whenever it requires painting. Indeed it would seem as though paint would protect a building for a hundred years or more if properly applied at the right time. The color of paint is important. Do not indulge in gay colors.

DRAINAGE SUGGESTIONS

1. Have your dead furrow extend in the line of greatest slope on the flatter lands.
2. Plow in narrow lands not over four rods wide so that there will be a dead furrow or a back furrow every two rods.
3. Plow twice in the dead furrow where it crosses a ridge. In long level furrows, plow twice near the outlet to create a fall toward the surface-run.

DRYING UP A COW DIFFICULT

Milking Habit in Some Is So Strongly Developed They Give Milk Up to Calving Time.

Many times certain cows are very difficult to dry up. The milking habit is so strongly developed that they tend to give a large quantity of milk right up to calving time. The proper way to dry up most cows is to cut off all grain in the ration and milk only once a day for a few days. Then lengthen the periods between milkings by milking only once in two or three days until the secretion of milk is nearly stopped. In very persistent cases the feed supply may have to be cut down more severely. However, there is little danger of injuring the udder if reasonable attention is given.

GUERNSEY IS HIGH PRODUCER

In General Appearance Breed Has Plain Attractiveness That Appeals to Dairyman.

The Guernsey shows various colors, so red, light lemon, orange and yellow fawn may be expected, sometimes solid, but more often with white markings. The white color markings are found on the face, flanks, legs and sometimes on the body. In general appearance the Guernsey has a plain attractiveness and an even balance that makes a strong appeal to the dairyman. Larger than the Jersey, but not as large as the Holstein, it

Guernsey shows the capacity for work so desirable in the dairy cow. Years, and even centuries, of tethering in the fields of Guernsey islands have given the Guernsey cow a gentle disposition, and in the respect she stands on a par with the Jersey.

WINTER FARM STORAGE PIT

Meat, Fruit and Vegetables Last Season of Too High or Too Low Temperature of Cellar.

The country has had a load of advice about canning and drying food for winter use. Let us not forget the facts about winter farm storage for fruit and vegetables. Many farmers grow good crops of garden vegetables, and then lose them because the storage place is too hot or too cold. We want to learn all we can about pits and dug-outs and cellars for holding garden and orchard food. Here is the picture of a cabbage pit taken from a Method of Storing Cabbage.

Colorado bulletin. The cabbages are stored by placing them head down three in a row and two on top, making a tier of five cabbages, the roots extending in the air. The pile may be as long as necessary. Several inches of straw or leaves should then be put over the cabbage and the same amount of earth thrown on them. Cabbage may be kept frozen solid without injury to the head, provided it is thawed out very gradually.—Rural New Yorker.

GARDENERS SAVE OWN SEEDS

Little Time Spent in Selecting Best Early Specimens Will Improve Varieties.

Many gardeners save their own seeds, but they are not very careful about selection, using all the plants for the table that are wanted and saving the seed from what happens to be left. As a consequence, in a short time the variety is "run out," the term used when seeds propagate weak, inferior plants. A little time and care in saving the best early specimens will improve the varieties, instead of injuring them.

The news reached Napanee on Thursday that Mr. Duncan Benn, a lifelong resident of Napanee had passed away at the home of his daughter at Belleville. Until a short time ago Mr. Benn conducted a blacksmith business in the east end of this town.

The marriage took place Friday evening of Miss Ruth Madeline Lyons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Lyons, Kingston, and Harold Hammond Harvey, of Deseronto. Canon Fitzgerald officiated at the ceremony. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Flora Lyons, the groom being supported by F. A. McGall. After a honeymoon trip to eastern points they will take up their residence in Kingston.

Professor Clark's lecture in Historical Hall this Friday evening, January 4th, promises to be one of the most interesting of the series. A number of slides secured in Holland will be thrown upon the screen. No neutral country has had a more difficult task set before it during the war than the little Kingdom of the Netherlands. No admission is charged, and all are welcome. Come early so as not to interrupt the lecturer.

Mary Moyle, beloved wife of Mr. Uriah Wilson, ex-M.P., passed away on Saturday. Deceased had been in failing health for some months and her death was not unexpected. Besides her husband, who is also in very poor health, she leaves four sons, Messrs. U. M. Wilson, C.C.A., and James Wilson, Napanee; Mr. John T. Wilson and Dr. C. E. Wilson, Toronto, also two sisters, Misses Susie and Maggie Moyle, who made their home with her. The funeral took place on Tuesday afternoon from her late residence, Rev. Geo. W. ## AGRICULTURAL EFFICIENCY CONDITIONS ARE CHANGING.

It is no longer sufficient to follow a make-shift policy. The modern farmer needs the best. A smart new car and garage, do not look well beside dilapidated buildings, and it will pay to fix up your house and buildings, as well as to put fertilizer on your land.

You are up against a large and continuous demand for all you can produce within the next five years, and need the best accommodation your buildings can be made to furnish.

Prices of Lumber and Building Supplies are likely to advance, owing to a number of different causes, and as I have purchased heavily, it will pay you to buy NOW.

My present stocks are very good, and I do not expect to be able to re-place at present prices.

Why not come in and talk over what you want to do, take a look at some of the most approved plans of Farm Buildings, and get an inclusive price on the Lumber and Supplies you want?

WALKER-CAMPELL.

A very pretty wedding took place on Wednesday morning at Christ Church, Tyendinaga (Mohawk Reserve), when Margaret May Campbell, of Marysville, was united in marriage with the Rev. L. G. Osborne-Walker. The ceremony was conducted by Rev. Walter Cox, of Gananoque, assisted by Rev. Mr. Pringle, of Sharbot Lake. The bride looked very sweet in her gown of ivory crepe charmeuse with veil and orange blossoms. She carried a white prayer book. She was given away by her father. The wedding march was played by Miss Loft, and little Miss Beatrice Creegan was ring bearer. Double ring service and a hymn was sung in Mohawk while the register was being signed. Mrs. Johnston (Miss Oronhyetkha) sang very sweetly. After the wedding luncheon Mr. and Mrs. Walker left for the east on the six o'clock. The bride's going-away gown was grey plush, with hat and furs to match.

Obituary.

The death occurred at Colebrook on Saturday, Dec. 15th, of Elizabeth, daughter of the late Jacob and Hannah Asselstine, of Moscow, and widow of the late Mathew Lochhead, of Newburgh. She was over eighty-six years of age and was predeceased by her husband about twenty years ago. Since that time she resided in the Village of Newburgh. For a number of years past she spent several of the winter months with her niece, Mrs. Coleman Warner, Colebrook, and at the beginning of her last illness expressed the desire to be taken there. A throat specialist pronounced the trouble "cancer of the throat" and she passed away after three months of pain and suffering, borne with patient christian fortitude. She never tired of expressing her appreciation to and asking God's blessing on those who attended her during her illness. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Everson, on Tuesday, Dec. 18th, at 11 a.m., at the home of her niece. Deceased is survived by three sisters: Mrs. Huldah VanLuven, Collins Bay; Mrs. Mitchell Miller, Kentwood, La., U.S.A.; Mrs. Mary Garrison, Colebrook, and two brothers, John Asselstine, of Collins Bay, and George, of Moscow.

Obituary.

Mr. Henry Evans, one of Napanee's oldest residents, died here on Nov. 28th, 1917, at the ripe age of ninety years and one month. Though born at Cumberland Place, London, Eng. he spent most of his life within a few miles of Napanee. During his years of activity, he was tireless in his love and service for the church and for the cause of temperance. As S.S. Superintendent, as teacher, as class leader, as a member of the Official Board of the church, his place was almost never vacant. During the last ten years he was a member of Trinity Methodist church, but for the last five years was deprived by failing health of attending church. Always a great reader, his mind remained bright and he retained his interest in the church and the world to the last, though he looked forward joyfully to the life beyond. He married Eleanor Williamson, who predeceased him over twenty years ago. Seven children mourn the loss of a father whose consistent life and unselfish devotion were a constant example. Wm. E., of New Westminster; Mrs. Thompson, of Vancouver; Mrs. Swart, of Tappen B.C.; Chas. of Elkhorn, Man.; Geo. H., of Cincinnati; Mrs. H. W. Sagar of Deseronto, and Miss Addie M. Evans at home.

A Clever Soldier Gone.

Among the young Toronto officers who died on the Passchendaele Ridge serving their country was Lieutenant Meyer Cohen of the Forty-second Battalion, who a few weeks earlier earned the praise of General Lipsett, his Divisional Commander, and Sir Arthur Currie, by one of the cleverest bits of patrol work done on the Lens front during the past season.

Cohen and five men under his command were out one misty night in
No Man's Land, near Merecourt, when they discovered a hostile patrol of six men sheltering among some bushes. The Canadians stalked the enemy until they got within almost pointblank range and then rushed them, killing three and capturing the others. Having taken his prisoners back to the Canadian lines, Cohen decided to go out again with his patrol, reasoning that the sound of firing
and the failure of the German patrol to return to the battalion by which it was sent out would be followed by investigation. His little group of men had scarcely been posted near the trap in which the first hostile patrol had been caught when three more Germans appeared. They were all captured and taken back to the Canadian trenches. Thus Lieut.
Cohen and his patrol took or disposed of nine of the enemy without suffering any loss. Young officers such as he, with keen reasoning power and cool courage, do much to make the operations of the Canadian Corps the success they almost invariably are. That so many of them pass out after a brief period of service is one of the great tragedies of the war.
